For September 21, 2015

'I love you not only for what you are, but for what I am when I am with you.'

—SARAH MICHELLE GELLAR, celebrating her 13th wedding anniversary with Freddie Prinze Jr. on Instagram

'I remember thinking, "Ellen, how in God's name could you make this film and not be out?"'

—ELLEN PAGE, on how her role in gay-rights drama Freeheld inspired her to come out as a lesbian, to Out

'I mean, people are voting for [Donald] Trump. Who wouldn't vote for Kanye?!'

—RIHANNA, on Kanye's plans to run for President in 2020, to Entertainment Tonight

'I wrote a breakup letter to the Spirit of Tobacco... Then I didn't have a cigarette for another two years.'

—COLIN FARRELL, who says he proceeded to burn the letter in a frying pan in order to help him quit smoking, to Men's Health

'I'm Switzerland.'

—DEMI LOVATO, refusing to take sides in the Miley Cyrus-Nicki Minaj feud, on Jimmy Kimmel Live!

'I've always had them somewhere. I think all men do, and all women have that motherly instinct, and it was exciting to explore that and daunting and scary.'

—ANDREW GARFIELD, on the fatherly instincts that kicked in while filming 99 Homes, to Entertainment Tonight

Q & A

Simon Le Bon

Duran Duran's* Paper Gods *drops Sept. 11

This is the band's 14th LP—how is it different?

We've never had an album with so many guest stars: We've got Janelle Monáe, Kiesza, Lindsay Lohan. . . .You could say I've held on to the microphone quite jealously in the past decades.

How did Lindsay's feature spot come about?

I've known Lindsay for years—I met her on the Regis and Kelly show, and we stayed in contact. She texted me, and then our song "Dancephobia" came up. She delivered 100 percent. She's very special.

As a musician, what do you make of One Direction taking a break?

I'm not surprised in the slightest. The pressure on them is so great, something had to break. Good luck to them all—they've worked so hard.

You have three daughters: Are you a cool dad?

I'm okay. They could have done a lot worse [Laughs]. I'm not your average dad, but I'm a good, caring, loving father.

The tragic life of Rosemary Kennedy comes to light.

'How can you just forget about your daughter?' Paula via people.com

Rosemary Kennedy

Placing Rosemary Kennedy on your cover is honoring her in the way that she deserves.
Kim Rose Bourne, Mass.

I think we have to look at the time period the Kennedys lived in. This was what families did in order to care for their disabled family members. They probably thought this treatment was in her best interest. I don't agree with their choices, but they did what they could.
Amanda via people.com

What a devastatingly horrible and sad situation for all those involved.
Lynn Morrison via e-mail

I'm glad her family members embraced her later in life; it's the least she deserved. What a difficult article to read due to both the subject matter and my tears.
Ellen Shain New Rochelle, N.Y.

Amy Schumer and Jennifer Lawrence

I love that they are friends—they are so funny, talented and un-Hollywood. I can't wait for their new film!
Jules via people.com

It's so great to see women in Hollywood supporting each other, especially individuals like Jen and Amy who don't feel the need to conform to Hollywood's idea of what a woman should be.
Ethel Saperstein via e-mail

On-Camera Horror

I'm so very sad for the loved ones of all concerned, even the shooter—he must have had loved ones too.
Lexie via people.com

The combination of mental illness, the availability of guns in the wrong hands and social media, is really an issue. The world has changed so much since I was young.
Todd via people.com

Queen Elizabeth

Sept. 9, when Queen Elizabeth becomes the longest-reigning British monarch, will be a special day for us Brits to celebrate. We have come to know, love and admire her.
Diana F. via people.com

Thank you for publishing the photos and the article about Queen Elizabeth. She truly is a beautiful woman inside and out.

People UPDATE

HEARTBREAK "The details are so painful," says Roy's aunt Becki Maki of the alleged texts between Carter (right) and Roy.

'Suicide' Texts Revealed

Prosecutors have released more evidence in the case of Michelle Carter, accused of "encouraging" her friend Conrad Roy III to commit suicide. "It's now or never," Carter, now 18, allegedly wrote in one of hundreds of texts to Roy. "You always seem to have an excuse." In the case, first reported by People in our March 16 issue, Roy, 18, died from carbon monoxide poisoning inside his car in a Fairhaven, Mass., parking lot just over a year ago. Carter has been charged with involuntary manslaughter. Her attorney Joseph P. Cataldo, who filed a motion on Aug. 24 to have the case dismissed, tells People, "Those words are protected as free speech." On Oct. 2 a judge is expected to rule on whether or not there will be a trial.

Like most of us, I fell in love with Melissa McCarthy when she lifted her leg in Bridesmaids, trapped Air Marshal Jon in an airplane restroom and said unspeakable things to him. (The fact that the air marshal was played by her husband, Ben Falcone, made it even better.) Off-screen Melissa is as funny, warm and lovely as you'd want her to be. She's also serious about her art and using her fame in positive ways—but she never takes herself too seriously. I'm always proud to have her on the cover of People and glad our audience likes her as much as I do. In this week's cover story Melissa (who worked with executive editor Kate Coyne) tells us about her latest project—her own clothing line, Melissa McCarthy Seven7—and shares some of her secrets and inspirations for looking and feeling great. Another American beauty, Reese Witherspoon, who also has her own clothing line, Draper James, tops our best-dressed list. I first met Reese 14 years ago to interview her just as Legally Blonde was turning her into a superstar. Even then she was a force—smart, magnetic, ambitious, charming and willing to work hard to make the most of the opportunities coming her way. Grace is an accessory that can't be bought, and it's what gives both Reese and Melissa true style.

With this issue we're also launching PeopleStyle, the new banner for People's style and beauty coverage. You'll be seeing it in the magazine and on our revamped digital style channel (PeopleStyle.com). Our style and beauty director Andrea Lavinthal and her team have already made People a powerful voice in the fashion and beauty worlds—weekly print features, video programming and obsessive coverage of celeb style and beauty on People.com. Now we're giving you more of it. Over the next couple of weeks we'll be unveiling redesigns for our print and digital features and lots of great new content, like a new slate of video programming including StyleTracks, a breezy take on the day's looks and trends based on the popular magazine feature. During New York Fashion Week (Sept. 10-17) influencers including top style blogger Aimee Song, Orange Is the New Black star Dascha Polanco and even Toast the Dog (all pictured here) will take over People's new style Instagram (@People_Style) and take you inside the shows and parties. It's going to be fun. You can find all our great fashion and beauty coverage in every issue, on the People.com homepage, or you can go directly to PeopleStyle.com.

JON HAMM & JENNIFER WESTFELDT

CALLING IT QUITS AFTER 18 YEARS

BY JULIE JORDAN

Hamm, who began dating Westfeldt in 1997, told People last year that he felt lucky to have her in his life. "Absolutely," he said. "Our lives are entwined."

AFTER MONTHS OF speculation, Jon Hamm and Jennifer Westfeldt confirmed over Labor Day weekend that they had split. "With great sadness, we have decided to separate, after 18 years of love and shared history," the couple tell People exclusively. "We will continue to be supportive of each other in every way possible moving forward."

Hamm, 44, credited Westfeldt, 45, for supporting him during a rehab stint for alcohol abuse earlier this year. In April the pair denied breakup reports and looked happy together at an event for Netflix's Wet Hot American Summer: First Day of Camp this July. But in August, Hamm was solo at Oceana's SeaChange Summer Party in Dana Point, Calif. At the time, the Mad Men star told People he was figuring out next steps: "I'm just getting my life back in order."

PIPPA MIDDLETON

QUEEN OF JOCKS!

Pippa Middleton knew exactly how she wanted to celebrate at the finish line of her latest daunting endurance event on Sept. 7, one day after she turned 32. Says Michael Lemmel, a cofounder of Otillö, a 47-mile swim-run in Sweden: "She requested a gin and tonic!"

Princess Kate's younger sister has spent much of the past year taking her training regimen to new extremes, and Otillö "was one of the hardest things I've done," she said. Although she has pulled off previous athletic feats—including running a marathon in Africa just one week after completing a 54-mile bike race—the swim-run, which she competed in for charity, came with extra challenges. "The toughest part," she said, was "the cold water and big waves."

When she's not in hardcore training mode—or flaunting the results on vacation—Pippa has been positioning herself as a fitness guru. "It's about finding the balance that works for you," she wrote for Britain's Waitrose Weekend magazine, "so good health is simple, real and achievable without being a 'my body is a temple' bore."—MONIQUE JESSEN

"He just jumped right in," says Uri-Khob.

PRINCE HARRY'S

AFRICAN ADVENTURES!

Pippa isn't the only royal sibling celebrating a birthday: Prince Harry turns 31 on Sept. 15. By then the royal will be back from his three-month-long "dream job" in Africa. "He threw himself in," Simson Uri-Khob, CEO of Save the Rhino Trust, tells People. "He is like an African man. He likes to be out there, sleeping under the stars. He helped with everything"—including a checkup of a sedated adult lion. Says Uri-Khob: "His heart is with wildlife."

SANAA LATHAN

What My Dogs Know About Me

Lathan on her dogs' Halloween look last year: "They looked like superheroes!"

The actress, 44—who stars in the thriller The Perfect Guy*—shares secrets her beloved English bulldog Pops, 11, and Briard Sophie, 8, know.*

"I'll do anything in front of my dogs. They've probably seen everything! I one hundred percent have similar personalities to them: I love walks, and there's a side of me that's very stubborn like Pops. And like him, I'm a foodie and I like to be silly. Sophie is very loving and very affectionate, and I'm like that too. I definitely pamper my dogs. I give Pops massages—he loves that. I also give him oatmeal whitening baths and get blowouts for Sophie. I have to brush Sophie regularly and she hates it! It's like having 10 little girls. Sophie follows me everywhere, and Pops is a snuggle-muffin. I would have him sleep in the room with me, but he snores too loud. He snores like a 300-lb. man!"

AVRIL LAVIGNE & CHAD KROEGER
MOVING ON

ON SEPT. 2 AVRIL LAVIGNE shared a glowing photo from her wedding day to Chad Kroeger. But instead of gushing about her husband of two years, the singer announced the Canadian power couple were separating. "Through not only the marriage, but the music as well, we've created many unforgettable moments," she captioned the photo. "We are still, and forever will be, the best of friends and will always care deeply for each other."

The Nickelback frontman, 40, and the "Complicated" singer, 30, who have been dogged by split rumors since early in their marriage, appear to be moving on. Kroeger has stepped out without his wedding ring, and Lavigne—who continues to battle Lyme disease—has settled into a new L.A. home. Lately, says a source, "Avril looks great and seems happy."

ROSIE O'DONNELL & TATUM O'NEAL
NEW ROMANCE?

Six months after filing for divorce from her second wife, Michelle Rounds, Rosie O'Donnell potentially has a new woman in her life: Tatum O'Neal. "They are romantically involved," says a source. "It's a bicoastal relationship." Though O'Donnell's rep denies the romance, the former View host, 53, and the actress, 51—who have been friends for years—have been spending time together both in Nyack, N.Y. (where O'Donnell owns a home), and L.A., says the source. In August the new couple attended the Broadway opening of Hamilton and reportedly shared a cozy meal at Da Silvano. Adds the source: "They are confidantes and are enjoying each other's company."

3 CONFESSIONS WITH CAROLINE FLEMING

REALITY ROYALTY! THE DANISH BARONESS AND HOST OF DENMARK'S NEXT TOP MODEL, 40, IS A NEW ADDITION TO THE CAST OF BRAVO'S LADIES OF LONDON

She has a rebellious streak

I come from an extremely formal background, but I am a bit of a wild child because I haven't always followed the unwritten rules. I'm the first person in my family for many generations to work and create a career. Being born into my family has its obligations, but I really wanted to experience life and not continue down the same path as everyone else.

Champagne dreams? She's more about stovetop musings

I've written two cookbooks. It's the greatest passion of my life. I came across this hobby very casually when I was 18 and modeling. Later on, when I was living in Switzerland, I had a lot of time to experiment with different ingredients. My favorites are my pestos. They should replace ketchup.

What you see on TV isn't what you'd get in real life

When I'm in the interview chair on the show, I'm fully made-up. But day to day, you'll never see me wear makeup. I kind of enjoy that when I smile, I have wrinkles that show I've really enjoyed life. I'm all for less. I barely brush my hair!

Favorite
New York. Today when I was walking around I was just like, "This is my favorite city." I love being here. I love this place.

Hobby
Singing. I have a cover band with my best friends called the Girls. We don't perform very often because we're all actresses, but we're singing the national anthem at a Dodgers game!

Twitter
Mean. I hate that that was my initial reaction, but I might be over it. Some people are just mean!

Escape
Big Sur. Cell phones don't really work, and there are no TVs in hotel rooms. You can just go up there to relax and unplug.

Fiancé
Incredible. Aww, I have an incredible fiancé. [Dave Franco]'s so wonderful. He's the sweetest man I know and incredible in every way.

Dream
Flying. I have really great flying dreams all the time. It's like I'm running toward the end of something, and I know I got this.

Fear
Reese Witherspoon. I love that movie. I'm thinking Mark Wahlberg and Reese on a roller coaster having a sexual experience.

JADE & TANNER

Inside Bachelor in Paradise's Surprise Engagement

IN A SEASON OF ENDLESS tears and drama, the blossoming romance between Tanner Tolbert and Jade Roper remained rock solid and was perhaps even a foregone conclusion. "Jade was the No. 1 girl I wanted to meet, but I didn't think I had a chance," says Tolbert, a finance manager. Little did he know that after they met, Roper felt the same: "I definitely had an interest right away." Their relationship progressed just as quickly. "We became roommates three nights in," says Tolbert, 28. Now they're making plans to move to Tolbert's native Kansas City, Mo.—and shooting down naysayers who question an engagement that took place after three weeks. "When you're away from real-life distractions, it's just condensed," explains Roper, 28, who owns a cosmetics line. "What we have is very rare. It's special." As for their upcoming nuptials, she's already in prep mode: "I want a short engagement. I've been sending Tanner wedding ideas from Pinterest!" —AILI NAHAS

"Tanner loved its elegant simplicity and felt it fit her style," Neil Lane says of the two-carat-diamond-and-platinum ring he designed for the June 24 engagement.

ONE to WATCH

MICHAEL RAY

Don't let the tattoos fool you. "People look at me and think rocker. But my heart is country," says Michael Ray, 27, who scored a No. 1 hit with "Kiss You in the Morning" in August. He grew up playing the classics in his grandfather's band. "All my friends were his friends. My 16th-birthday party was me, three friends my age and a whole bunch of senior citizens."

Check out our annual Ones to Watch special portfolio, on stands Sept. 18.

CATCHING UP WITH…

ROB LOWE

On The Grinder you play the star of a canceled legal drama who moves home to work at the family law practice. Would you ever work with your real family?

My younger son [John, 19] is actually working in the writers' room and has a recurring role on the show. Working with him has been fantastic. That said, I'm happy he's headed back to Stanford. The world needs more smart people, not less.

Have you been learning a lot about being a lawyer?

I really was meant to play this part. My father has been practicing law in Dayton for 50 years and my older son [Matthew, 21] is at Duke and will be entering law school next year. There is a lot of life-imitates-art stuff going on.

What project do people recognize you most from?

One of the things I'm most grateful for is that I can't answer that question. It could be Sam Seaborn from The West Wing. It could be from Tommy Boy. It could be from Parks and Recreation or The Outsiders. It could be a 7-year-old who yells out my name because he knows me from the DirecTV ads.

What has kept you in love with acting?

I think being an actor is a lot like being an architect or a lawyer. You take cases for a living and some of them are more interesting than others. Some of them strike a chord in you. Every once in a while, you come across roles like that, like with The Grinder. –PATRICK GOMEZ

The actor, 51 (below, with costar Fred Savage), will preview his new sitcom (premiering Sept. 29 on FOX) at a PaleyFest event in Los Angeles on Sept. 15.

Day Care 'Fight Club' Stuns New Jersey Parents

Accused workers quoted from the movie

Two Cranford, N.J., day-care workers at Lightbridge Academy have been charged with fourth-degree child abuse after starting a "fight club" for kids between 4 and 6 years old. Chanese White, 28, and Erica Kenny, 22, who both pleaded not guilty, are accused of "instigating fights among children," according to prosecutors. Kenny is also accused of uploading video of the fights to Snapchat. "I'm shocked," says Eliana Meira Rantz, who has two kids at the facility. "How did this happen?"

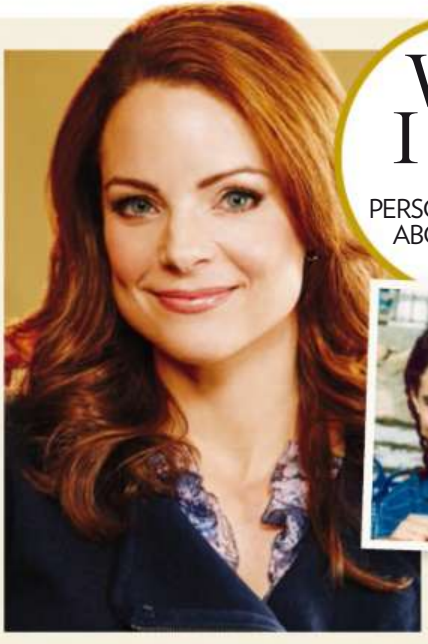
PERSONAL STORIES ABOUT GIVING BACK



Williams-Paisley with mom Linda in 1989.

Kimberly Williams-Paisley

Inspired by her mom's battle, the actress, 44, helps families dealing with dementia

My mother suffers from dementia. She'll still laugh once in a while, she'll still cry or be angry or moan sometimes, but she's completely nonverbal now. The National Association of Insurance Commissioners is a resource that my family didn't know about when we were first going through this illness. They help regulate insurance companies and educate consumers. They have a lot of resources that I wish we had tapped into, like questions to ask your aging parents. It's been a tough time. The thing that's helped me is being able to share my story and fight for a cure and speak on behalf of the Alzheimer's Association and the NAIC. That makes me feel like I'm taking control of a situation that for so long made me feel powerless. –REPORTED BY DANIELLE ANDERSON

A DOZEN COOL THINGS TO SEE, HEAR, READ AND DOWNLOAD THIS WEEK

Joseph Gordon-Levitt pops into Kaling's life—and bed.

JOHN FLEENOR/NBC

No. 1 The Mindy Project

No, you're not dreaming—Mindy Kaling's funny sitcom, killed off at FOX, has returned to life

HULU COMEDY Back in the spring Kaling painted herself into a corner, or maybe two: On season 3 of the delightful Mindy, Dr. Lahiri discovered she was pregnant—a surprisingly, even perilously conventional twist for a sitcom that had been sailing along just fine, breezy and nonchalant. Then FOX killed the show. That's a corner. Now Hulu has given Mindy a new season online—thanks!—but what about that baby? What about Mindy's ridiculously complicated relationship with Dr. Castellano (Chris Messina, with his virile upper lip)? As the opening episodes address these crucial issues, the show is still funny but also a bit frantic and overcooked, even slipping into a Sliding Doors alternate reality with Joseph Gordon-Levitt as Mindy's husband. There's something to be said, sometimes, for Lena Dunham's broody immobility. But the pleasure of Kaling and Messina's amorous jousting is as strong as ever. They're a rom-com classic. (Launching Sept. 15)

No. 2 Miley Cyrus, Miley Cyrus & Her Dead Petz

Her latest is free and—no surprise—a wild critter

MUSIC EXPERIMENTAL Done hosting the Video Music Awards, Cyrus released—unleashed—this wacky surprise album about love and other drugs (mostly weed, as in the song "Dooo It!"). Petz includes guitar ballads ("Karen Don't Be Sad") and sexed-up funk ("Bang Me Box"). But Cyrus is best just wailing over a piano ("Twinkle Song"). It's not for everyone—but, hey, she's just bein' Miley. (Streaming free on soundcloud.com/mileycyrus)

No. 3 Ferrell Takes the Field

TV COMEDY To raise money for charity, Will Ferrell spends one very full day hopping around baseball training camps in Arizona, playing for 10 different teams. His prowess on the field probably wouldn't have gotten him too far from Mudville, but what matters here is the oddball geniality beneath Ferrell's familiar pose of self-importance. "Is [this] going to be easy?" he asks. "Yes." His famous pitches, he solemnly tells us, include one named Barry—"a dear friend." (HBO, Sept. 12, 10 p.m.)

LEGAL NOTICE

If You Purchased a Product That Contains Flexible Polyurethane Foam, Such as a Mattress, a Couch, or Carpet Underlay, You Could Be Eligible to Receive Money by Participating in Nine Proposed Class Action Settlements Valued at $151,250,000.

TO DETERMINE IF YOU ARE ELIGIBLE TO RECEIVE MONEY, READ BELOW. YOUR LEGAL RIGHTS ARE AFFECTED. PLEASE READ THIS NOTICE CAREFULLY.

To File a Claim, Visit www.PolyFoamClassAction.com

Para una notificación en español, llamar o visitar nuestro website.

Who is paying the settlement money?

A lawsuit known as In re Polyurethane Foam Antitrust Litigation, Case No. 10-MD-2196, is pending in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio in Toledo. The Court previously approved Settlements with two Defendants in the lawsuit: Valle Foam Industries, Inc. and Domfoam International, Inc.

Additional Settlements have now been reached with the following Defendants: (1) Carpenter Co., (2) FFP Holdings LLC, (3) Future Foam, Inc., (4) FXI Holdings, Inc., (5) Hickory Springs Manufacturing Company, (6) Leggett & Platt, Incorporated, (7) Mohawk Industries, Inc., (8) Vitafoam (Vitafoam Products Canada Limited, and Vitafoam, Inc.), and (9) Woodbridge (Woodbridge Foam Corporation, Woodbridge Sales & Engineering, Inc., and Woodbridge Foam Fabricating, Inc.). Together, these "Additional Settling Defendants" will be paying a total of $151,250,000 into the Settlement Fund. There are no other Defendants that have not settled.

What is the lawsuit about?

Several individuals and businesses ("Plaintiffs") brought claims on behalf of a Class of end-user "indirect" purchasers of products that contain flexible polyurethane foam manufactured or supplied by the Defendants. These products include bedding (for example, mattresses, mattress toppers, or pillows) carpet underlay (also called carpet padding or carpet cushion), and upholstered furniture (for example, a sofa with foam cushions).

Plaintiffs claim Defendants engaged in a conspiracy to: (i) increase prices of flexible polyurethane foam and (ii) not compete for, or "allocate," customers. Plaintiffs contend Defendants violated numerous States' antitrust and consumer protection laws. Defendants deny these claims and deny they are liable to Plaintiffs in any way. The Court has not decided who is right.

Who is included in the lawsuit?

YOU are included in the lawsuit and may be entitled to money IF:

1. You purchased one or more of the following products containing flexible polyurethane foam that was manufactured in the United States: upholstered furniture (such as a couch with foam cushions), carpet underlay (foam padding), or bedding products (such as a foam mattress or pillow), and
2. You are the end-user of the product that you purchased, meaning you did not buy it for resale to someone else, and
3. You made your purchase in AL, AZ, CA, CO, DC, FL, HI, IL, IA, KS, ME, MA, MI, MN, MS, MO, NE, NV, NH, NM, NY, NC, ND, OR, RI, SD, TN, VT, WV, or WI, and
4. You made your purchase during the time period January 1, 1999 to August 1, 2015.

What do the Settlements provide?

Defendants in the nine Settlements will pay a total of $151,250,000. If the Plan of Allocation is approved by the Court, payments will be made to each Claimant from each Settlement pro rata based on the number of valid claims filed and the amounts paid for qualifying products. You can obtain more details about the Plan of Allocation at www.PolyFoamClassAction.com, or by calling 1-866-302-7323.

The Settlement Fund may also be used to pay for: (1) the cost to administer the Settlements, (2) attorneys' fees, costs, and expenses, and (3) awards to Class Representative Plaintiffs. Plaintiffs' counsel will request attorneys' fees not to exceed thirty percent (30%) of $151,250,000, plus reimbursement of costs and expenses. The Court will then decide a reasonable fee and expense award.

How can I get a payment?

You must submit a Claim Form to get a payment. You can submit a claim online or by mail. The deadline to submit a claim is FEBRUARY 29, 2016. Claim Forms are available at www.PolyFoamClassAction.com, or by calling 1-866-302-7323.

Who represents you?

The Court has appointed Marvin A. Miller of Miller Law LLC to represent the Plaintiff Class.

What are your options?

1. Participate. If you made purchases that include you in this lawsuit and you do not timely request to be excluded from the Settlements, then you will automatically be bound by the terms of the Settlements. You will also be legally bound by all orders and judgments of the Court. You will not be able to sue the Additional Settling Defendants in any other lawsuit for conspiring to fix prices or allocate customers of flexible polyurethane foam. In order to get a payment from the Settlement Fund, you must submit a Claim Form.

2. Don't Participate. If you do not want to be a part of one or more of the nine Settlements, you may request to be excluded. If you are excluded from a Settlement, you will not be bound by or benefit from that Settlement, or any other Court orders relating to that Settlement, but you will keep your right to sue or resolve your claims on your own against that Additional Settling Defendant. To see the requirements for submitting a valid request to exclude, visit www.PolyFoamClassAction.com, or call 1-866-302-7323. Requests to exclude must be in writing and received by NOVEMBER 25, 2015.

Court Hearing

The Court will hold a hearing to decide whether to approve the nine proposed Settlements. The hearing will be on DECEMBER 15, 2015, at 10:00 a.m. at the Ashley U.S. Courthouse, 1716 Spielbusch Avenue, Toledo, Ohio 43604. The Court may change the date, time, or location of the hearing. To obtain the most up-to-date information regarding the hearing date and location, please visit www.PolyFoamClassAction.com, or call 1-866-302-7323.

If you choose to participate in one or more of the Settlements, you may object to or comment on those Settlements in writing by NOVEMBER 13, 2015. You or your own lawyer may appear and speak at the hearing at your own expense. To see the requirements for filing an Objection, visit www.PolyFoamClassAction.com, or call 1-866-302-7323.

No. 6 Furious 7

DVD+STREAMING

ACTION All credit to the folks behind Furious 7 for turning the tragedy of Paul Walker's death into a beautiful tribute to his life. An exciting one, too, in which Dom Toretto (Vin Diesel) and crew try to stop terrorist Deckard Shaw (Jason Statham). Get the backstory on the insane stunts—cars thrown off a mountain and dropped from a plane—and how, through much of this gung ho mayhem, all were mourning Walker.

Walker's legacy is secure with Furious 7.

No. 7 Brett Eldredge, Illinois

The rising star's talent cannot be overstated

MUSIC

COUNTRY Kick-starting with the upbeat "Fire," Brett Eldredge's sophomore album burns bright from beginning to end. Building on the success of debut Bring You Back and its three No. 1 hits, Eldredge, CMA New Artist of the Year, is pushing ahead, incorporating R&B tinges and even island drums on the bouncy "Just a Taste," "Drunk on Your Love" and "Lose My Mind." With soulful touches and a croon reminiscent of Frank Sinatra—Ol' Blue Eyes is one of the singer's personal heroes—Eldredge also shines on the torchy standout "Wanna Be That Song" and the title track, an ode to his home state and the boy he used to be. Perfect for those craving country with a kick.

Once bitten, twice (camera) shy: Ravi and Geeta Patel.

No. 8 Meet the Patels

MOVIE

DOCUMENTARY Ravi Patel is an American actor—he's played a lot of doctors—but his search for love is real. Having just ended a relationship, he's promised his hilariously pushy parents, Champa and Vasant, to get serious. With his sister Geeta filming, Ravi hunts for the One. There's a catch: She has to be a Patel. (Essentially, from the same Indian region.) Patels is a charming, enlightening take on what it is to be American and Indian as it explores arranged marriage, dating by database and plain old cold feet. (Sept. 11, PG)

No. 9 Duran Duran, Paper Gods

MUSIC

POP Unabashedly borrowing (still) from the best of the '80s, the pop gods breathe new life into their nostalgic beats with some top-notch guests on their 14th LP. Nile Rodgers, Mark Ronson and Janelle Monáe's fingerprints are unmistakable on the funky "Pressure Off," while Kiesza and Lindsay Lohan lend vocals to synthy live-in-the-moment thumpers "Last Night in the City" and "Danceophobia," respectively. It'll have club kids young and old reaching for the hairspray and eyeliner.

MOVIE DRAMA The Cold War geopolitics of chess is interesting (honestly), but Sacrifice is built on its performances: Tobey Maguire as chess phenom Bobby Fischer and Liev Schreiber as Russian Boris Spassky, his opponent in 1972. Both are gripping, and so is Peter Sarsgaard as Fischer's minder, tasked with keeping his mental illness in check. That becomes a far scarier fight than white pieces versus black. (Sept. 16, PG-13)

No. 12 The Best New Books

A 'perfect' marriage deconstructed, a spooky debut thriller and smart comic essays by Jesse Eisenberg

EDITED BY KIM HUBBARD

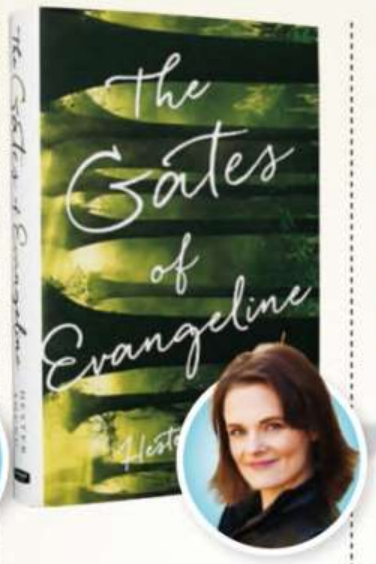
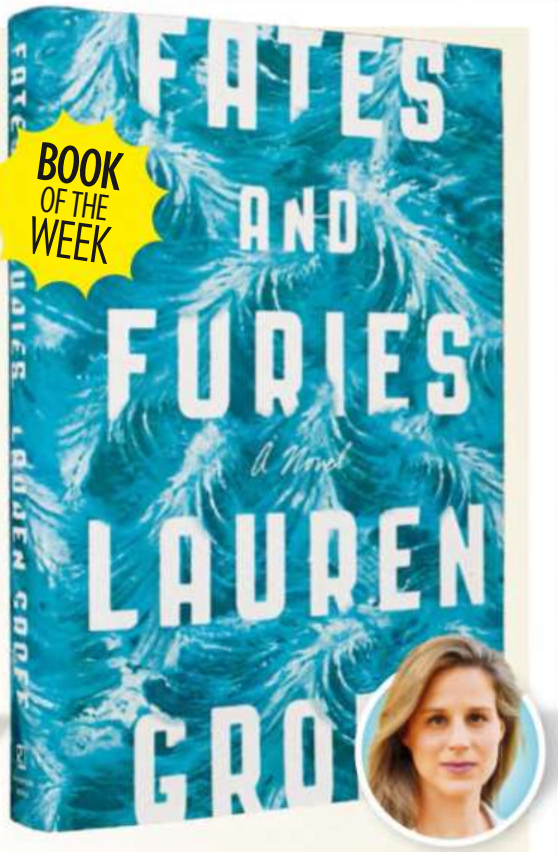
Jesse Eisenberg
Bream Gives Me Hiccups

HUMOR Fans of writing by Woody Allen and B.J. Novak will revel in these hilarious pieces by actor-playwright Eisenberg. Light or dark but never sweet, each is inventive—from the yogurt store review by a 9-year-old to a session with Marv Albert, therapist. Relationships gone haywire provide many of the best jokes. It's a hoot.



Hester Young
The Gates of Evangeline

NOVEL Secrets and lies, danger and romance—it all lies ahead for Charlotte, a New York journalist who's mourning her dead son and having terrible dreams that draw her to the Louisiana bayou where another child has disappeared. In this spooky thriller, everyone's a suspect, and the plot twists will keep you guessing.



Lauren Groff
Fates and Furies

NOVEL Lotto and Mathilde meet and marry at 22. Oozing charisma, they're the glue holding their bohemian New York City tribe together. He's a creative genius, and she's a genius at managing his genius—you might resent them if Groff (Arcadia) weren't holding a sharp knife of suspense to the throat of their allegedly perfect relationship throughout. This is a playful and riveting read that questions whether love can be true when it's wrapped in falsehoods.

PERFECT MATCH
"There are no secrets between us," says Amy (with Dillon on their wedding day). After knowing one another for more than seven years, "we hold each other accountable."

FAMILY TIES
"It was one of those moments like, let's all come together and be happy, despite all that's going on," says Amy of the entire Duggar clan (including Josh's wife, Anna, below, holding their baby) putting scandal aside to turn out for her big day. "There is something to be happy about."

Amy Duggar Weds

Finding Joy After Scandal

THE DUGGARS' FUN-LOVING COUSIN PUTS FAMILY DRAMA ON HOLD FOR A MODERN WEDDING

BY JANINE RAYFORD RUBENSTEIN

It was exactly how she'd pictured it. As Amy Duggar prepared herself to walk down the aisle at Horton Farms near Bentonville, Ark., on Sept. 6, her young cousins Johannah, Jordyn, Jennifer, Josie and Mackynzie skipped out ahead of her, ringing bells, announcing, "The bride is coming, the bride is coming!" And with her many relatives looking on, including her aunt and uncle, former 19 Kids and Counting stars Jim Bob and Michelle Duggar, Amy, in a sexy strapless ball gown, walked eagerly toward her future husband, small-business owner Dillon King. "With him I'm

THEIR ROMANTIC DAY

1. The wedding party stood under a banner made by Amy's father, Terry Jordan, that read, "He has made everything beautiful in His time." Says maid of honor Julie Story: "Everything was perfect." Officiant Chuck Butler likened life and love to "being on a roller coaster." 2. To match her 3-carat diamond-and-rose-gold engagement ring, Amy gave Dillon a titanium-and-rose-gold band. 3. Hand-painted signs decorated the ceremony and reception. 4. Amy joked that her five-tier cake, with raspberry and cream-cheese layers, was "half naked." 5. "It was not your traditional wedding," says Amy, whose theme was "rose gold and candlelight."

at ease and peace at all times," Amy, a nanny, told People the day after the wedding. "This is such a positive moment in our lives."

Their joyous day was a rare bright spot amid the darkness that has engulfed the Duggar family this year. In May Amy's cousin Josh, 27, admitted to "wrongdoing" after a 2006 police report surfaced, revealing that he had been accused of molesting five young girls when he was a teen. Within days two of his sisters—Jill, 24, and Jessa, 22—came forward as two of the victims. Less than three months later, Josh confessed to cheating on his wife, Anna, 27, and "living a double life" addicted to pornography, further tarnishing the once-pristine family name. It also had Amy rethinking her dream wedding. "We almost eloped," she says of her and Dillon's thoughts after the second scandal broke last month, adding that she couldn't wait to change her name from Duggar following months of bad headlines about her extended family. "There's been so much heartache and pain," she says, "We didn't want the attention to be about what happened."

But with 400 guests already invited, the pair decided to proceed as planned. Josh, who was originally going to emcee the reception, remained away,

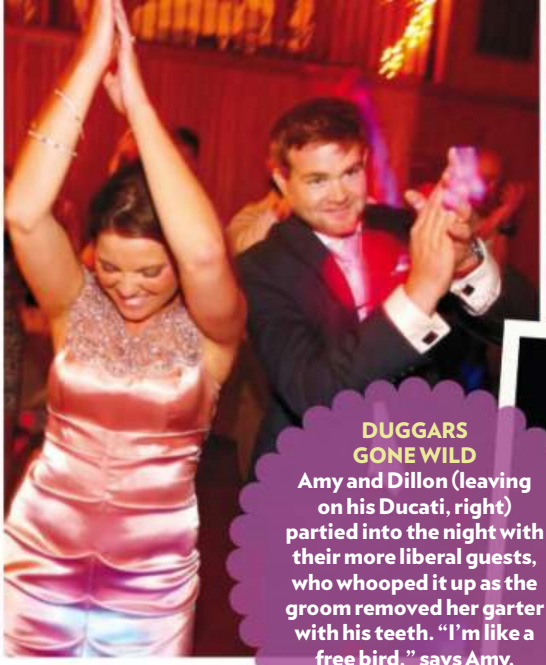
Anna Steps Out

In a rare appearance since a sex scandal affected her own marriage, Anna Duggar attended Amy's wedding. "I gave her the biggest hug ever when I first saw her," says Amy. "I can't imagine what she's been through . . . Anna was beautiful. She said she's very happy for me." While Josh is in rehab, Anna is looking after their four children—and leaning on her in-laws for support. Says Amy: "I know she loves our family now more than ever."

undergoing treatment for sex addiction at a rehab facility in Illinois. Though Amy admits she is "still furious" over her cousin's actions, which have also lead to internal family fighting—Anna's siblings "have been begging her to leave him," a source told People; Jessa seemed to side with her father-in-law, Michael Seewald, when he publicly denounced Josh as "not a good Christian"—she says ultimately she feels compassion: "He needs to get as much help as possible."

As a gesture of friendship and goodwill toward Josh's embattled wife, Anna, Amy enlisted Josh's daughter Mackynzie as one of her bell ringers. She also left personalized messages for Anna and aunt Michelle Duggar in their chairs at the reception." It means the world to me that they want to come to my wedding despite everything that's going on," says Amy. Her cousins Jessa and Jill were in attendance as well, with Jill returning from missionary work in El Salvador with her husband, Derick, and 5-month-old son Israel for the occasion. "Our family is closer now than it has ever been," says Amy. "They are so important to me."

Following the emotional outdoor ceremony, "it was a celebration," says Amy, who slipped into a slinky satin rose-gold-hued gown as guests were treated to a sit-down dinner of crumb garlic chicken, macaroni and cheese and infused-water beverages, followed by a cash bar and raucous dance party that raged into the night. Jim Bob, Michelle and Amy's cousins, who famously don't drink or even dance, bolted at the first sign of craziness. "My conservative family left probably right when the music started," says Amy, often called "the rebel Duggar" for not subscribing to her aunt and uncle's strict lifestyle restrictions. After their exit, "everyone took off their shoes," says Amy. "It went from classy to trashy real quick!" And that's just how Amy King wanted it. "It's kind of like in the last Harry Potter film when the wedding is going on in the middle of all the chaos," Amy says. "Despite all the crap going on in my family, it was an awesome moment." ●



DUGGARS GONE WILD
Amy and Dillon (leaving on his Ducati, right) partied into the night with their more liberal guests, who whooped it up as the groom removed her garter with his teeth. "I'm like a free bird," says Amy, "But I still have morals."

SYRIAN REFUGEE CRISIS

TRAGIC JOURNEY

AFTER A DESPERATE FATHER LOSES HIS WIFE AND TWO YOUNG BOYS IN A BID TO FLEE HIS WAR-TORN HOMELAND, THE WORLD RESPONDS WITH HORROR TO THE MOUNTING DISASTER

A boisterous and cheerful toddler, 3-year-old Alan Kurdi was excited when his father, Abdullah, told them they would be taking a short boat ride from Turkey to Greece. The family had fled their homeland of Syria a year earlier and were finally headed for a new life in Europe. Twenty minutes into the trip, a wave rocked their crowded raft. "Alan laughed and said, 'Daddy, that is so cool!'" recounts Abdullah's sister Tima. Within minutes, the boat had been pitched upside-down and Abdullah was desperately trying to grab Alan, his other son, 5-year-old Ghalib, and his wife, Rehanna, 29. "He said to me, 'I hold my two boys, one in my right hand, one in my left hand, and the waves pushed me down,'" says Tima. "He said, 'I screamed, "Breathe, breathe, breathe. Don't die in my hands."'"

The next morning, images of the tragic aftermath would shock the world: Alan, lying face-down on a Turkish beach, before his tiny body was carried out of the surf. The family—all dead except Abdullah—was among the 4 million Syrians to flee their homeland during the past four years of civil war. "All I want to do is sit next to the grave of my wife and children," the grieving father told reporters. "Everything is gone. Enough with this war."

> 'I tried to catch them, but there was no hope. One by one they died'
> —ABDULLAH KURDI

The deaths, which came days after the grisly discovery of a truck filled with 71 dead migrants in Austria, reignited outrage over the mounting refugee crisis. In response, Britain, Austria and Germany agreed to accept thousands more Syrian refugees. But it is too late for Abdullah and his family, who were hoping to make their way to Canada, where Tima settled in 1992. After burying his sons and his wife, "Abdullah said to me, 'My kids are a wake-up call for the world to step in and help,'" she says. "'If they are going to save lives, I am so proud of my angels.'"

CHELSEA CLINTON

Being Charlotte's Mom

THE FORMER FIRST DAUGHTER OPENS UP ON HOW SHE'S RAISING HER OWN LITTLE GIRL—AND, IN A NEW BOOK, CALLS ON ALL KIDS TO HELP CHANGE THE WORLD

by SANDRA SOBIERAJ WESTFALL

The screensaver on Chelsea Clinton's phone is a photo of her daughter Charlotte, 11 months, with her little blonde head bent over a pile of open books. "She reads to herself—goes duh-da-duh-da, waits three seconds, turns the page," says Chelsea, 35. "Oh, my gosh, it makes me so proud!" Chelsea herself was reading and writing by age 5 (see below). Now she's vice chair of the Clinton Foundation, and with her mother, former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, she promotes reading and singing to babies to help their brain development. And on Sept. 15 Chelsea is out with her first book, It's Your World, a primer for middle schoolers on issues like poverty and wildlife conservation and how they can help save the planet. "The first thing I learned to read was the newspaper," Chelsea says. "I was always encouraged to engage in the world and make a difference. Now that I'm a mom, I think about how to give that sense of empowerment to Charlotte." Raising her daughter with husband Marc Mezvinsky in a $9 million Manhattan apartment, Chelsea also thinks about how to keep her from growing up spoiled—but instead with "a sense that to whom much is given, much is expected."

CHELSEA'S LIFE IN PICTURES
1. Voting with her dad in 1986. 2. Chelsea (in '93) says she'll seek office too "if, someday, I felt we weren't having the right leadership." 3. Chelsea (in Cairo in '95) has called herself an "invisible soldier" for her family's global causes. 4. Mezvinsky (far left, in '14) is a "hands-on dad," she says.

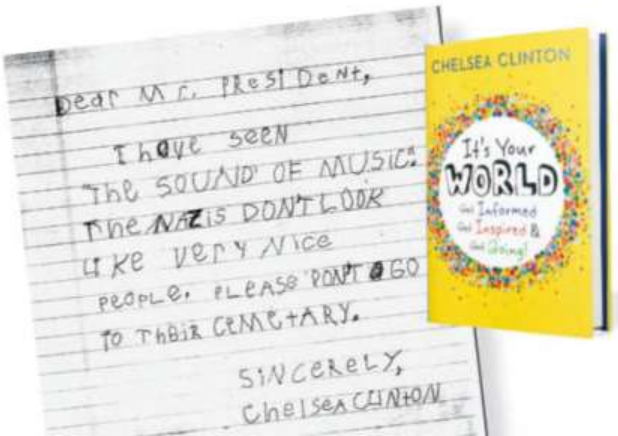
But first, there's teething. And, despite distractions like running for President and helming a global foundation, Charlotte's doting grandparents are on the case. "I hear from them every day," says Chelsea. "It's 'Oh, I'm in the neighborhood, can I come by?' They want to be part of her daily routine." She describes her mother coming off a recent campaign trip to babysit—and invent endless verses of "The Wheels on the Bus." "It can go on for hours. Like, every animal from Old MacDonald's farm gets on the bus." Chelsea says everyone enforces the pediatrician's orders on no TV or iPad before Charlotte turns 2—except for Facetime. She has three times upgraded her iPhone storage for photos and videos of Charlotte but won't (yet) share her daughter with her almost 2 million followers on social media. "It just hasn't felt right," she says. For now, "I'm more concerned about her hitting her head when she falls over from having just learned how to stand up." Chelsea wants more kids—"knock on lots of wood." Since becoming a mother, she says, "I love my husband and my parents even more. My love for Charlotte has opened space in my heart and brain that I didn't even know was there." ●

'I want Charlotte to have her own dreams and path absent scrutiny from the outside'



Out to Change the World

"For as long as I can remember, my parents expected me to have an opinion or point of view about everything," Chelsea writes. "Reading the newspaper was only a first step—making a positive difference was what mattered most.... It felt important and exciting to know I could at least try. I wrote a letter to President Reagan when I was 5 to voice my opposition to his visit to the Bitburg cemetery in Germany because Nazis were buried there."

"Bowen is proof that anything can be accomplished with love," says Devon Toomey (with Heath, bottom left, Brooks, top, Bowen and Jeremy).

No Arms, No Legs, NO

HE WAS BORN WITHOUT LIMBS AND ABANDONED AS AN INFANT IN A SERBIAN ORPHANAGE. NOW ADOPTED BY AN AMERICAN FAMILY, BOWEN TOOMEY LETS NO OBSTACLE STAND IN HIS WAY

By CATHY FREE • Photographs by ANDREW HETHERINGTON

Bowen relies on his left elbow and a universal cuff that lets him lift a spoon to eat or hold a pencil to do his homework.

Limits!

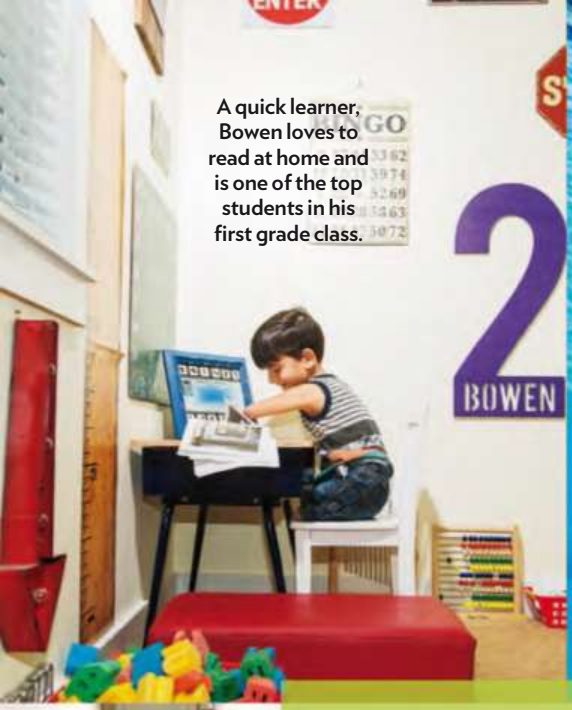
"He's an inspiration," says Jeremy Toomey, tossing Bowen into the air.

It's lunchtime on a lazy Sunday in Eagle, Idaho—time for 6-year-old Bowen Toomey to pull himself up to his full height of 25 inches and scoot down the staircase in his family's two-story home for a bowl of his favorite steel-cut oatmeal topped with bananas. "One! Two! Three!" he shouts as he tackles each step. "Four! Five! I'm coming, Mom!" When he reaches the bottom, he rolls across the floor and hops up to a bench at the kitchen table, sliding a Velcro band with a spoon onto his upper left arm—the only limb he has ever known.

Born without arms or legs in a small town in Serbia, Bowen was abandoned as an infant and spent the first 18 months of his life in a crowded orphanage, seldom leaving his crib, never interacting with other children and rarely being spoken to by caregivers. Then on Oct. 1, 2009, 5,600 miles away, Omaha homemaker Devon Toomey, 40, made the decision that would change his life forever. Devon came upon Bowen's photo on Reece's Rainbow, an adoption website for special-needs kids. When she saw Bowen's picture, "I just knew that he was supposed to be our son," she says. "I knew that I was his mother. It was meant to be." Devon and her husband, Jeremy, 38, an orthopedic surgeon, already had two biological sons, Heath, 9, and Brooks, 6, but they had often talked about adopting a special-needs child. "When she told me about Bowen, I was shocked at first, thinking that we should wait a few years," says Jeremy, "but then I realized there was no perfect time. Here was a little guy who needed a family."

When the Toomeys brought Bowen home in June 2010, they immediately realized that his missing limbs weren't the main challenge. "The biggest issue was speech," says Devon, "because nobody had been talking to him. He also didn't know how to chew food, because he'd been on a liquid diet. And because he was stuck in a crib, he didn't know how to move."

Five years later, the Toomeys (who moved to Eagle in 2013) delight in Bowen's passion for life. "Early on, I had a doctor say that he would never move around or sit up on his own," recalls Devon. "I immediately walked out of his office. I knew he was wrong." Now in the first grade, Bowen has a set of prosthetic legs, but he doesn't like to use them, preferring instead to get around in his unique way. "He doesn't let anything stop him," says Jeremy. "He's figured out the best way to do things on his own. We're so very grateful to have him in our lives." ●



A quick learner, Bowen loves to read at home and is one of the top students in his first grade class.

An avid swimmer, "he'll do the barrel roll from one end of the pool to the other," says Devon.

Bowen moves easily around the family's five-bedroom home.

'I can do anything!'

Bowen adapted well when the Toomeys first brought him home to Nebraska in 2010. "We had a physical therapist come to the house, and he progressed very quickly," says Devon. Bowen now scoots where he needs to go in an upright position and uses his left elbow to propel himself forward. He can feed himself, paint, draw, swim and snow ski, using prosthetics strapped to his skis that he calls his "Spider-Man legs." Says Jeremy: "His limb difference never crossed our minds. In fact, after we brought him home, his brothers hardly noticed he was missing his right arm. Bowen has just always given everything his all."

"We don't baby him," says Devon. "We want him to learn independence."

A favorite activity: playing games on his iPad.

AFTER LOSING HER MOTHER TO CANCER, THE 23-YEAR-OLD FINDS THE STRENGTH TO BECOME HER 'MOST AUTHENTIC' SELF

Gigi Lazzarato was 19 years old when her mother died of cancer. The YouTube star known as Gigi Gorgeous and her mom, Judy, shared a close bond, but when it came time for their final goodbye, the teen still had one secret she hadn't shared: She is transgender. "I never got to say it to her face," says Lazzarato, now 23. "[Her death] made me realize, 'Life is too short to not do what you want to do. Let's become the most authentic you that you can be.'"

"I was a very creative child," says Lazzarato (in 1998).

Named Gregory at birth, Lazzarato says she had an "active" childhood growing up in the Toronto suburb of Mississauga as the middle child in a "loving and amazing" family. After discovering her passion for diving around age 9, she won a Canadian junior diving championship in 2005. She credits diving with giving her childhood "shape," but the "grueling" training schedule also forced her to "put away" the feeling that she was different, which had been with her for as long as she can remember. 1. "After I won a title, I kind of fell out of love with diving," says Lazzarato (in 2005). "I'd achieved what I could in the sport."
2. "They understand me fully and see me as the person that I am," Lazzarato (in 1995 with brothers Adam, 25, and Cory, 21) says of her siblings.
3. "I truly believe my mom is watching over me and knows that I'm Gigi now," Lazzarato (with Judy in 1997) says of her late mother.

had no time to think about becoming who I really was inside," says Lazzarato, who "was always attracted to more feminine things" and would sneak makeup from her mother's collection. But after quitting diving, Lazzarato quickly began embracing her true self. "I knew it was going to be shocking," she says of wearing a full face of makeup to her Catholic school at the age of 15.

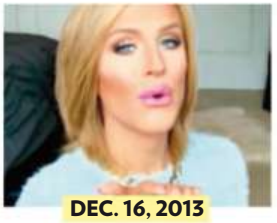
In 2008, encouraged by friends and teachers, Lazzarato began posting on YouTube under the moniker Gregory Gorgeous (see sidebar). Her makeup tutorials started out as "fun little projects," but after a few months Lazzarato says she was getting recognized at the mall and realized she'd perhaps found her calling. At the time Lazzarato identified as a homosexual male. But after a chance meeting with transgender model and performance artist Amanda Lepore, she began to realize that she too was trans. "My brothers are my best friends and came around very quickly," she says of sharing the life-changing news. "It was a bit harder for my father, but he's extremely supportive now."

'I always knew that something was different'
—GIGI LAZZARATO

Next Lazzarato shared her transition with her (now at 1.7 million) YouTube subscribers. Though she faced some "ignorant" comments, Lazzarato says she was met with "overwhelming support" from her fans as well as the entertainment industry. She's now a social ambassador for Crest Canada, partnered with Too Faced Cosmetics, nominated for a 2015 Streamy Award, and helped introduce Miley Cyrus's performance at the MTV Music Video Awards on Aug. 30. Lazzarato admits living in front of cameras can seem daunting at times ("I'm going to try to keep things more personal," says the "newly single" star, who most recently dated Internet personality Cory Binney), but she wouldn't change a thing about her life today. "The fact I get to do what I do is definitely God's gift to me," she says. "And that's how I know my mom is looking out for me." —PATRICK GOMEZ

Her Public Transformation

MARCH 11, 2010
Nineteen months after posting her first makeup tutorial as "Gregory Gorgeous," Lazzarato shared her story of coming out as a gay male.



DEC. 16, 2013
"I felt like posting the video was letting go of who I was," the YouTube star says of revealing she is transgender. "I knew there was no going back."

OCT. 23, 2014
"It's flattering to be called beautiful," says Lazzarato, who still posts beauty tutorials. "But what's inside is more important."

'I Have So Much to Live For'

AFTER A GRUELING CANCER FIGHT, THE FORMER GMA ANCHOR TALKS ABOUT HOW LOVE HELPED PULL HER THROUGH BY EMILY STROHM

Joan Lunden runs around the backyard of her Greenwich, Conn., home, chasing the family's 3-year-old mini goldendoodle Bentley, then plops into her patio chair winded but happy. "I definitely get fatigued a lot. Just taking a walk down my street is harder now," she says, catching her breath. "But after surviving cancer, you have to be glad that you have your new normal and you can go on. And I'm a glass half full kinda girl."

She's earned that optimistic outlook. Just last September, the former Good Morning America anchor was fighting for her life and in the midst of an intense round of chemotherapy after being diagnosed with stage 2, triple negative

"It was an amazing experience," Lunden says of her decision to go bald on the cover of People last October.

"My husband and my girls were my rocks," says Lunden (center, right, with her husband, kids and grandchildren).

breast cancer, a particularly dangerous form that resists targeted therapy. "It's traumatizing to be that afraid," Lunden, 65, recalls. Perhaps equally traumatizing if exhilarating was buzzing off her trademark blonde locks—and posing bald for the cover of People. "I realized you don't have to be defined by cancer," she says. "And if that little dash on my tombstone represents what I do with my life since my diagnosis, I will be perfectly satisfied. To me I will have made my mark."

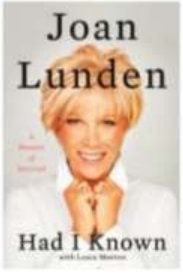
Now she's intent on living it up. A new grandmother to Parker, 1, and a second grandchild due this month (she has three daughters from a previous marriage, Jamie, 35, Lindsay, 32, and Sarah, 28, and she and her husband, Jeff, 54, have two sets of twins, Kate and Max, 12, and Kim and Jack, 10), "I have so many reasons to live," she says. "My daughters now are just starting their lives out with little babies that I can be there for to help answer their questions and enjoy their happiness, and at the same time I have my little kids, and they are in 5th and 7th grade!" After opening up about her experience and blogging about cancer on joanlunden.com, she's also realized the impact she can have publicly. "I never dreamed I would connect with as many people as I did or get the support I did. The immensity of this outpouring of love. It was critical."

She's also reflecting on the experience in her new book, Had I Known. "Nobody gets a guarantee in life, and I'm going to do everything that I can to make sure that I don't have a reoccurrence," Lunden says, adding that she hopes to share the lessons she learned with other women battling cancer. "I was always so focused on health and so convinced that I wasn't going to get breast cancer just because I didn't have it in my family, but I didn't know the real risk factors," she says. "I had all of them. I had gotten pregnant late in life, like many women today. I had fertility treatments like a lot of women today. I've learned a lot."

One lesson has been to lean on family, particularly her husband. "It's hard not to get emotional, thinking about just what another person will actually do for you and how they will stand by you. It was huge," she says, as tears begin to fall. "We had a good marriage anyway, but when you are threatened with the possibility of not having the other one, it's just made our marriage a thousand times stronger."

Nine months after her final chemo treatment, "I'm finally feeling whole again," she says. "I'm growing a teeny little bit of hair on my arms, and I just shaved my legs for the first time in a year," she says with a laugh. As for those famous blonde locks? "Boy, does it come back different!" she says, running her fingers through her short do. "It's coming back in coarse ringlets. It's like someone else's hair growing on top of my head. But at that point you are like, 'Okay, okay, I'll take it.'" ●

One Day at a Time



At the end of my chemo my doctor told me, "Statistically, and not just statistics but my nose, and I have a good nose for this, you are cured." [But] as soon as you stop fighting the cancer in your body, all that's left to think about is whether one little cancer cell somewhere, somehow, slipped through. Was there one little cell waiting to grow its own blood vessels and become a tumor?

I needed to knock FEAR out of my thoughts. I also needed to accept that if my doctor was wrong and my cancer came back, I would take care of it. I wouldn't cave. I wouldn't give in. I'd fight, just like I fought this time around.

The truth is, no one knows what the future holds. All we can do is live in the here and now and walk our path one step at a time. And if cancer [comes] knocking on my door again, I'll kick cancer's ass all over."

SUZY FAVOR HAMILTON

FROM OLYMPIC STAR

HOW AN UNDIAGNOSED MENTAL ILLNESS TOOK A GOLDEN GIRL OF TRACK AND FIELD TO THE DARK SIDE BY ANNE MARIE CRUZ

The news, when it broke in 2012, didn't make any sense. A top runner and three-time Olympian, Suzy Favor Hamilton had won American hearts throughout her career and graced magazines from Fitness to Outside—and now she'd been exposed as a high-end escort. "I can't believe that was me," says Hamilton, 47. "It's so bizarre to try to understand." As she explains in her revealing new memoir Fast Girl, excerpted here, the explanation lay in a mental illness she'd spent her early years outrunning: bipolar disorder. Years of the intense training highs that come with world-class track and field had masked her condition, but it worsened in 2011 when a prescribed antidepressant caused hypersexuality. Hamilton temporarily abandoned her longtime husband, Mark Hamilton, and their daughter Kylie, now 10, for a fantasy life in the escort world of Las Vegas. "Bipolar disorder pushes you to up the ante," she says. "So you do crazier and crazier things, but you see no craziness in them." After her secret sex career came to light, she was publicly shamed and dropped by sponsors. But the fall from grace also forced her to get help. Thanks to a regimen of targeted medication, talk therapy and rigorous exercise, she's enjoying a quieter life with her family in Madison, Wisc., and Malibu, working as a yoga instructor. "I wrote my book to help people not feel ashamed about who they are," she says. "My mistakes are greater than others', but we've all made them. Stand up and be proud of who you are. Life's too short to live in shame."

TO CALL GIRL

"My regret over the pain I caused my family is an ache that will never go away," says Suzy (at the 2000 Olympics, left, and in her Vegas escort days in 2012).

HIGHS AND LOWS
1. Even as a little girl, Suzy loved running fast. 2. "We were the perfect couple," says Suzy, who wed Mark on the University of Wisconsin campus in 1991. 3. Falling at the Olympics was "where my spiral down started," Suzy says. "I felt like such a failure." 4. "Sex was the biggest high to fuel my mania," says Suzy (in Vegas in 2012). "I still crave that high. I can't say I'll never act out in that way again." 5. Living by the ocean, she says, "has been mentally important to me."

At the 1992 Olympics, Suzy failed to win a medal—in part, she believes, because of the chronic panic attacks she suffered. After coming home empty-handed in 1996 as well, she desperately wanted to win at the 2000 Sydney Games as a way to honor her brother Dan, who had struggled with bipolar disorder before killing himself a year earlier. But the race didn't go well, and she shocked viewers by falling before she reached the finish line.

I was in trouble for my final 1,500-meter race. I felt my throat clog. With 150 meters left, the other runners passed me. I was going to come in last. No gold for my brother's memory.

Retiring to have a baby, Suzy unraveled after the birth of her daughter Kylie in 2005. She sank so low that she even contemplated suicide.

Driving home [one night], I prepared to drive my car into a tree. I accelerated faster. But I was getting closer to home where my sweet baby girl was waiting. You have to stay alive for her.

Suzy's doctor prescribed a drug for postpartum depression. Crippled by side effects, she quit her meds. When her symptoms returned, she tried another antidepressant, unaware of the havoc it would wreak.

In a couple months, I'd feel better again. Only everything didn't go back to normal. I suddenly had more energy than I could remember having. I wanted to live like I had never lived before.

For their 20th anniversary in 2011, Suzy suggested to Mark that they have a threesome in Vegas with an escort to inject some excitement into their troubled marriage.

Pearl strolled in, happy and relaxed. My nerves evaporated. She helped me slide my dress over my head, then she kissed me. Here I was having this incredible experience, sharing it with Mark. Now I wasn't just Suzy Favor Hamilton, Olympic runner. I was a woman who brought her fantasies to life, even if they were not things nice girls did. I felt amazing.

After she and Mark agreed to have an open relationship, Suzy went to Vegas

"We told Kylie in a way a 7-year-old could handle," says Suzy (with her and Mark in Palos Verdes). "She knows I didn't mean to hurt anyone."

alone and had sex with a male escort named Sebastian. She didn't use her full name.

"Sebastian is awesome," I told Mark. "We're both former athletes."

"But you didn't tell him you were a runner?" he said.

"I told him I was a gymnast. Relax."

"I don't think you have any idea how risky this is," Mark said.

Suzy's mania worsened, and she asked her escort contact Bridget to hire her.

"I get so many clients asking for an older woman," Bridget said. "You're in your 40s, you're gorgeous and you have a great body. You'll do well." I had no fear. I had no regrets. I wasn't hurting Mark and Kylie because, in my mind, this new life had nothing to do with them.

HEALING WORDS
Writing her memoir "was therapeutic for me. There are so many people who are silently suffering. What would happen if they spoke up? That's what I'm hoping to help with."

Suzy booked her first appointment the next day.

My first client was a 47-year-old cowboy named Paul who was incredibly wealthy. I was thrilled when a tall, handsome gentleman opened the doors to the biggest suite I'd ever seen. The next thing I knew, an hour had passed. He handed me an envelope. I counted ten $100 bills. My rate was $500 an hour. He'd paid me double! My high zoomed even higher.

As "Kelly Lundy," Suzy soon had multiple clients. Her frequent absences confused her 6-year-old daughter.

I could tell Kylie didn't really understand where I was or why I wasn't with her.

"I miss you, Mommy," she said [one day on the phone with me], tears in her voice.

"I miss you, too," I said. "I love you."

The sound of her crying was too much for me. I threw down the phone to finish getting ready.

'Mark and I have to work at our marriage, but we are doing 100 times better now'
–SUZY FAVOR HAMILTON

Already careless with personal information around her clients, Suzy did a photo shoot for her escort site, hiding her face. Soon after, a reporter from the Smoking Gun website found her in Vegas. The scandal erupted on Dec. 20, 2012.

The next morning, my darkest thoughts were on a loop: I had shamed my parents, my husband, our family. It would be better if I were dead.

Suzy was diagnosed with bipolar disorder in January 2013, but a year passed before doctors could get her mania under control.

When I read the list of common bipolar symptoms, none resonated more than this: risky sexual behavior with potentially dire consequences.

I was prescribed [another] drug that finally quieted my mind. And, with the help of a skilled mental health team, we cleaned up my wreckage and began the journey to repairing our family. ●

KUNAL NAYYAR

And Then I Fell in Love

IN AN EXCERPT FROM HIS NEW BOOK, THE BIG BANG THEORY STAR LOOKS BACK ON HIS FAIRY-TALE ROMANCE

BY PATRICK GOMEZ

Kunal Nayyar didn't plan to write about meeting his wife, Neha, when he decided to do a book of personal essays. "We're very private," the Big Bang Theory star, 34, says. What he wanted to share was his "underdog story" about growing up in India, moving to the U.S. and making it on a top-rated sitcom. His new book Yes, My Accent Is Real does have plenty of Big Bang tidbits and funny lessons from his charmed life—but Nayyar ultimately realized the story of "how this nerdy guy came to marry a beautiful former Miss India"—excerpted below—was too good to leave out. Still, he's no fool. Before he put pen to paper about their 2008 meet-cute, he says, he did what any good husband would do: "I asked her permission."

"She's an ex-Miss India. You need to meet her," said my cousin.

"Ex? Can't you introduce me to the current one?" I joked.

I was home for Christmas in New Delhi. My cousin and this beauty queen happened to have a friend in common. For a week they tried to get her to visit my parents' house, but she could never make it. Of course she can't make it, I thought. Miss Indias don't just drop by. But eventually my cousin arranged for the two of us to meet at the opening of some bar.

At five foot ten Neha stood six foot three in heels, towering over my five foot eight. She looked so stunning that I immediately assumed she would be a fake person.

"So you're an actor?" she said.

"I'm on a show called The Big Bang Theory."

"I've never heard of it."

Okay, so I can't play that card.

Instead we talked about our childhoods in New Delhi. Gradually, I think she could tell I was not a creep and she began to open up. "I was engaged,"

"I hope my book helps people realize they can live out their dreams," says Nayyar (with Neha in August).

she said, looking away. "And two weeks before the wedding he called it off." She had embarked on a spiritual path to try to make sense of the circumstances; she had embraced Buddhism, and it had saved her. There was something beautiful about the rawness of her emotion. I had known her for two hours and I was getting hooked.

[We had dinner soon afterwards], and three weeks later she was on a flight to L.A. to visit me. I was living in a loft divided only by curtains. Would the curtains freak her out? And what if she had weird feet? I'm not proud to admit this, but weird feet are pretty close to a deal breaker for me. I should clarify that almost all feet are weird feet. Also the sound of people wearing flip-flops drives me batty. Flip-flops should be banned.

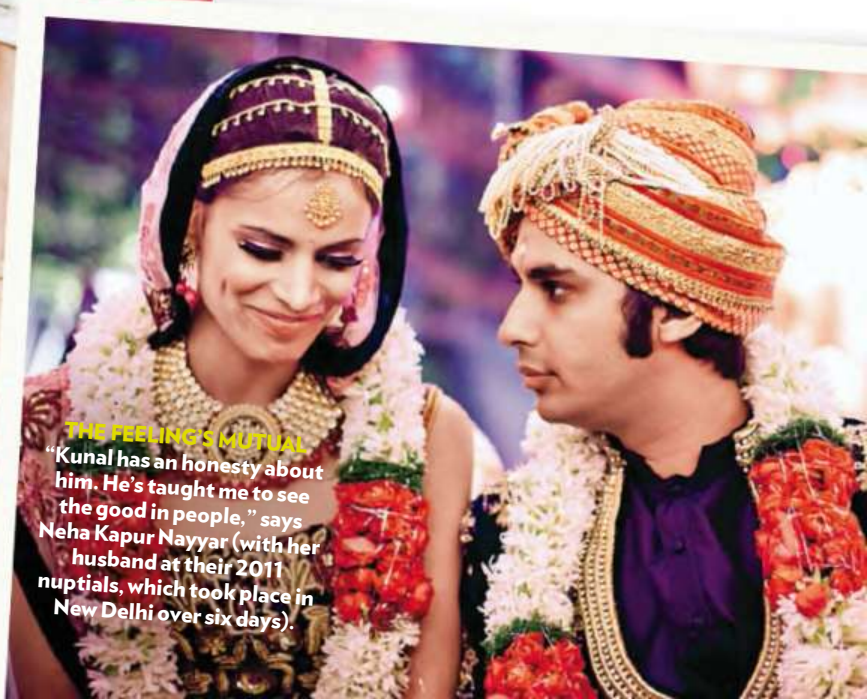
Neha's plane was about to land. What imperfection of mine would freak her out? There were so many unknowns. Except I couldn't stop thinking, I've met the woman I want to marry.

After the visit Neha returned to India but they talked every day. "We fell in love on the phone," Nayyar writes. In December 2011, almost three years after they met, they married.

Neha is kind. And she's funny without trying to be funny. To be honest, when she tries to make a joke she's terrible, which I find hilarious. One time at a lake we saw ducks fighting, and she said, "Look, the ducks are beaking each other up." Now that's one terrible joke!

I don't think I would have found Neha if I hadn't been willing to risk failure. It would have been easy to say she was Out of My League. But you can't find love if you're not willing to lose it. You can't find the love of your life without risking breaking your heart.

Dive in. ●



THE FEELING'S MUTUAL "Kunal has an honesty about him. He's taught me to see the good in people," says Neha Kapur Nayyar (with her husband at their 2011 nuptials, which took place in New Delhi over six days).

LOVE THE WAY YOU LOOK!

The star opens up about the emotional reasons she started her own fashion line and why the clothes you wear can change how you feel about yourself—and everyone else

By Melissa McCarthy with Kate Coyne

BEN WATTS

It's 2 p.m. on a steamy August afternoon in Tampa, and Melissa McCarthy is in trouble. Just an hour earlier, the Oscar-nominated actress, Emmy winner and mother of two had introduced her latest passion project—the Melissa McCarthy Seven7 fashion line—live on the Home Shopping Network. Now, sitting onstage opposite an HSN host, McCarthy has received a startling update: They've already sold out of nearly every item they've shown on-air. McCarthy's eyes widen at the news. "This is just crazy to me," she says, looking stunned.

She shouldn't be quite so surprised. Her fashion line—available in sizes 4 through 28—provides women of all shapes and walks of life with something they've clearly been clamoring for: choices. No item is more than $160, with most coming in at under $90. All of the clothes feature a noteworthy attention to detail—with playful pockets, luxe linings and bold prints. An HSN shopper named LaDonna, calling in on-air, clearly approves. "Thank you so much for making real clothes for real women," LaDonna says, getting choked up.

McCarthy, who studied fashion in college before turning to comedy, hopes women might feel liberated by her designs. "You can wear colors! You can wear patterns!" she urges. People seem to be getting the message: At HSN, producers announce they'll have to cut her next segment short as there's simply nothing left to sell—1,400 pairs of jeans have just been sold in two hours. "I need to start sewing. I could just go sit over there and get to work," McCarthy says before offering, "Or I could do shadow animals for the next half hour. This is my bunny.…"

Here, in her own words, the star shares her style philosophy. It's about more than looking good. As McCarthy explains, "What I want is for you to feel great."

1 FASHION SHOULD BE FUN!

I have always loved clothes! I absolutely obsess over how they're constructed, the drape of the fabric and, most important, how a particular garment can make me feel. Getting dressed is kind of like putting on armor: It has the power to protect us and make us feel confident. We've all had that perfect dress or that blouse that for some magical reason always makes us feel pretty or those jeans that fit just right and they'll have to pry them out of our cold, dead hands before we give them up. Clothing has that remarkable ability to make us feel good about ourselves. It should show off your personality! But over the past few years getting dressed had become a chore for me, a daily reminder of all of my imperfections. Fashion for the first time in my life had stopped bringing me joy. It was more about "What will fit?" and less about "What am I in the mood for?" I also knew that I wasn't the only woman who didn't want a low-rise jean. No one needs to know what color underwear you're wearing. Your coworkers shouldn't really know if you're a "thong gal."

Unless you're a nudist—and if you are, kudos to you for your self-confidence—you spend a portion of every single day of your life getting dressed. Let's say 15 minutes a day. That's an hour and 45 minutes a week, seven hours a month, 84 hours a year. I thought, "My God, I'm spending all this time doing something that doesn't even make me feel good. That's nuts. I have to change this!"

So if my clothing line, in any tiny way, can make women feel as amazing and powerful as they truly are, then that's the real joy. Of course, filling my closet with really cute clothes so I can play dress-up every day isn't bad either.

BEN WATTS

2 IGNORE ARBITRARY RULES

You should be able to wake up and say, "I am wearing weird boots and leopard pants and a ripped-up T-shirt and a leather jacket and a big bow in my hair." And the next day you can want to feel preppy or wear a sexy secretary outfit. We should be able to do that, but instead we don't—we live with so many arbitrary limitations. "I can't wear skirts." Maybe you don't want to, and that's fine, but believe me: You can.

There shouldn't be these teams and these rules. Every person and woman is different. We waste a lot of time trying to fit into some mold that we're never going to fit into. I've been every size under the rainbow, and my sense of style never left me, but my options did. I've never understood why women

'THANK GOD WE COME IN ALL DIFFERENT SHAPES [AND] SIZES'
—Melissa McCarthy

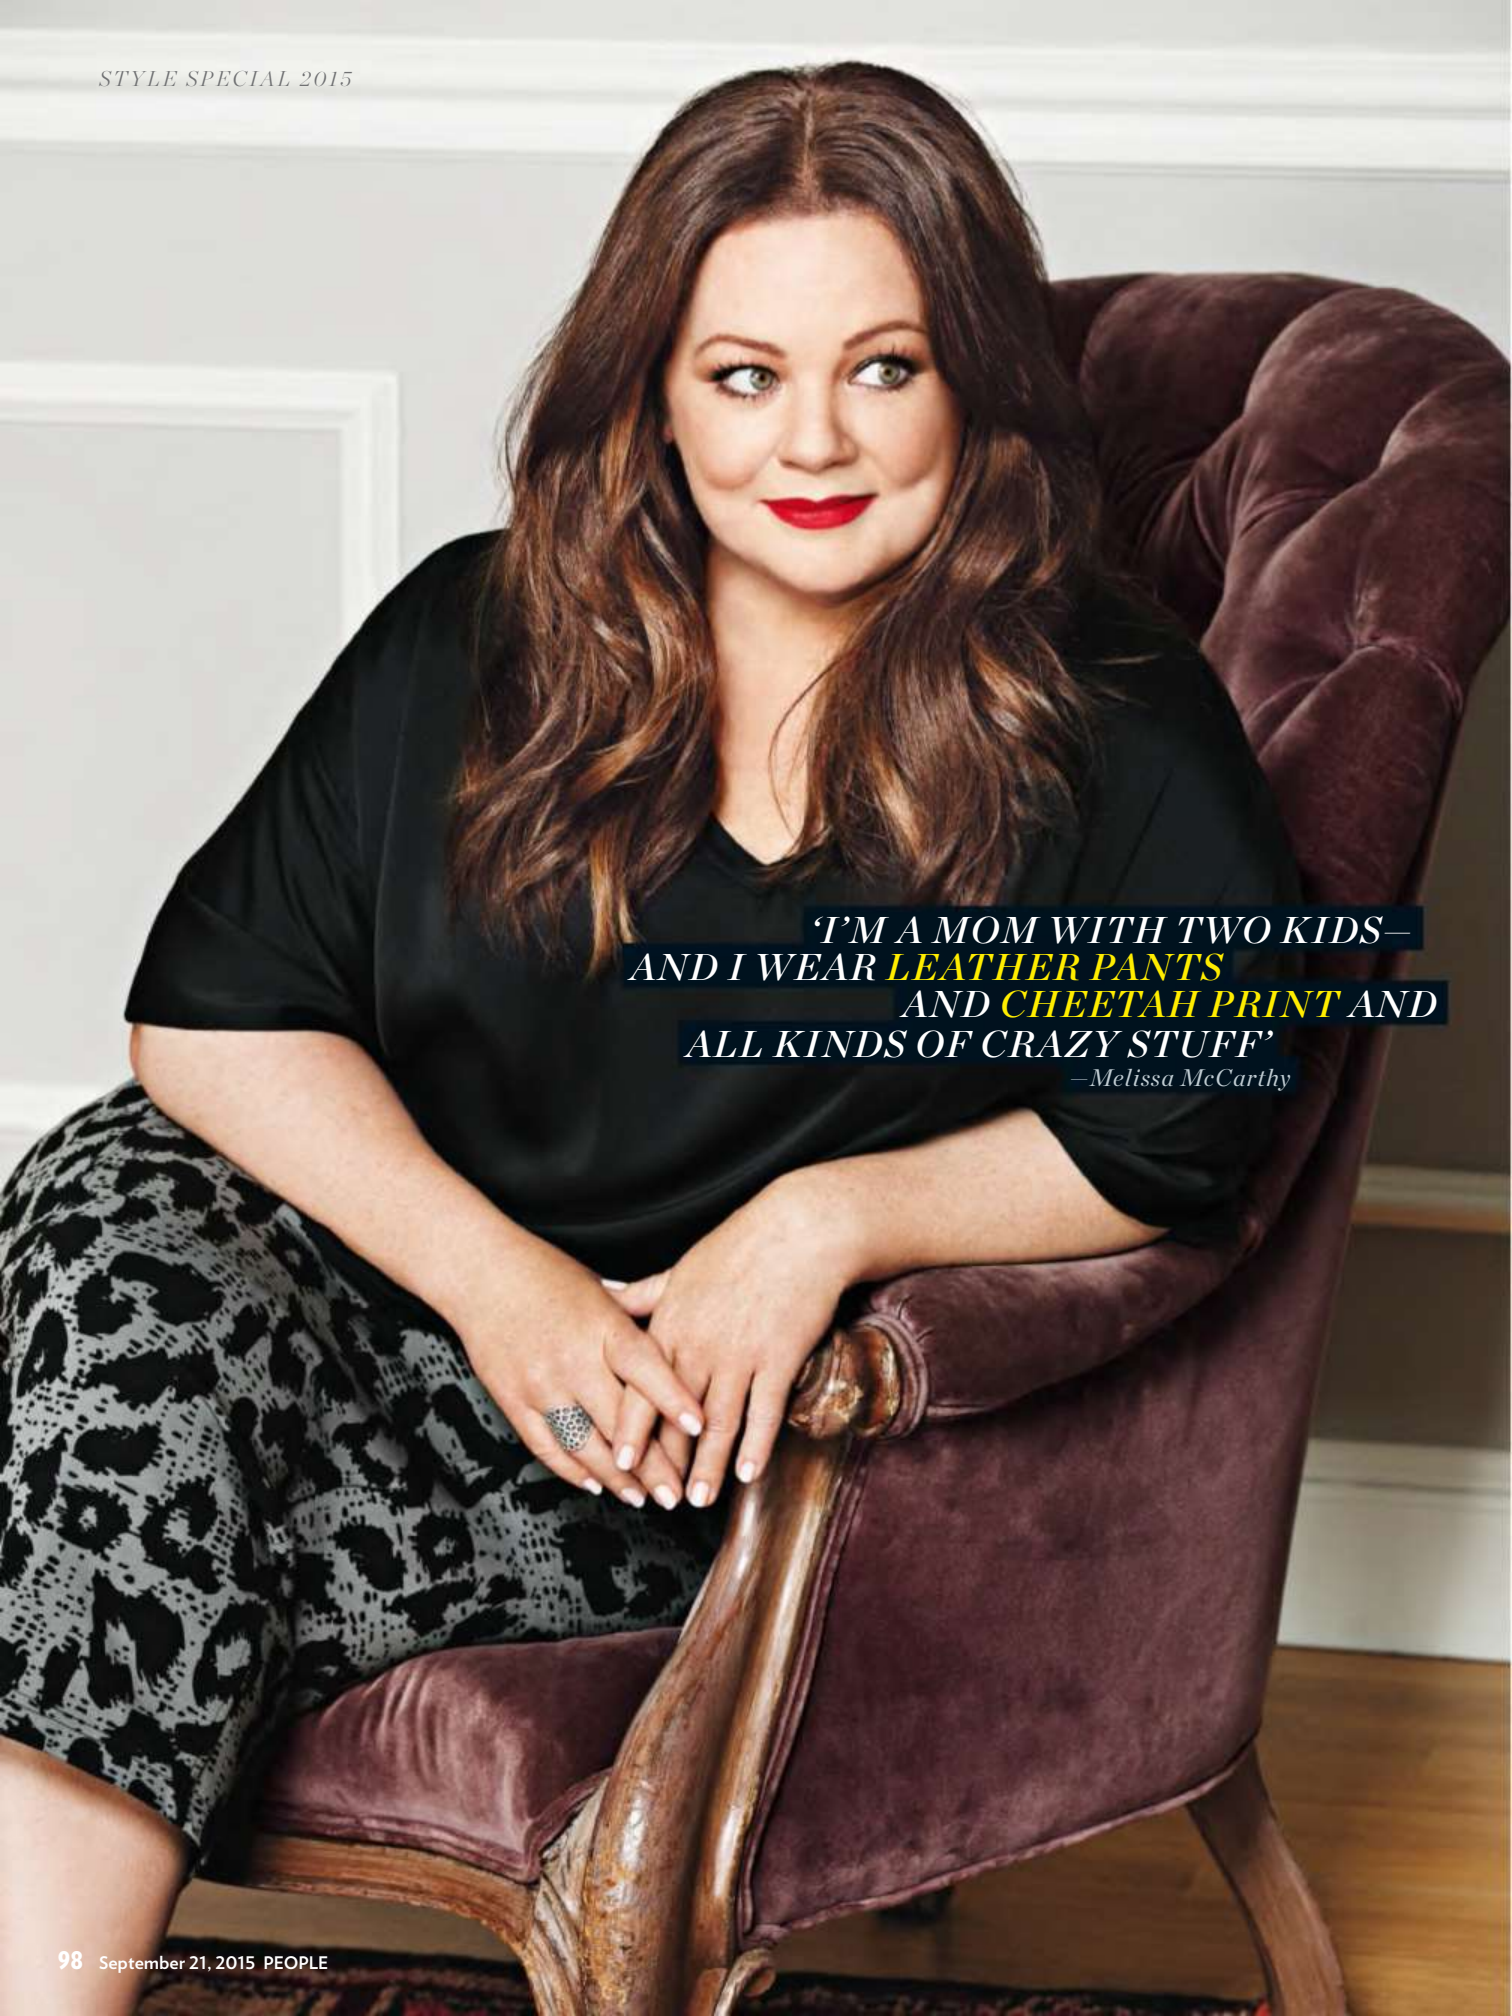
POCKETS! PLEATS! PRINTS! A FEW OF MELISSA'S FAVORITE THINGS

I believe little things matter. I used to wear a lot of vintage, and there were always these little details—a button, for example—that would make the clothing really special. So now, for me, it's about putting in that pleat, or adding pockets or leather piping running down the side of a pant leg, so you can tell someone cared about it and put thought into it. Please understand I do not mean bedazzling or putting bows on everything!

My daughter Vivie, 8, drew that cat last year saying "Le Meow." Because, she explained, "everyone should have a fancy cat." I can't even think of what I'll do when I see someone on the street wearing it. And when Vivie sees it? I'd better be standing next to her to watch her little heart fill up.

I spent a decade not owning jeans. I'd buy stacks of them, but none were ever right. I believe you should be able to sit comfortably in your pants. I knew we'd gotten these right when I was still wearing them by bedtime. I didn't want to tear them off the minute I got home.

MelissaMcCarthy Seven7 is available through Amazon.com, Bealls, Belk, Evans, Gwynnie Bee, HSN, Ideel .com, Lane Bryant, Lord & Taylor, Macy's, MelissaMcCarthy.com, Nordstrom, Penningtons and Von Maur.



'I'M A MOM WITH TWO KIDS— AND I WEAR LEATHER PANTS AND CHEETAH PRINT AND ALL KINDS OF CRAZY STUFF'

above a certain size are treated so differently. I say thank God we come in all different shapes, sizes, colors and personalities—how boring would it be if all women really were as homogenized as those ad campaigns told us we should be? I'm a mom with two kids—and I wear leather pants and cheetah print and all kinds of crazy stuff.

3 TRY TO PAY IT FORWARD

I'm weirdly vocal when I love how someone is dressed. I will literally shout, "I love everything you are wearing! I love that crazy skirt with that vest!" to a stranger. And I think fashion can make people feel better about themselves. I was on the street with my girls one day, and we walked by this guy who had on a T-shirt with some sort of really vulgar saying. And I had to try to distract my daughters, like, "Oh, look over there! Is that a dog? Look at that dog!" I didn't want to have to explain what that shirt was about. But that guy led me to create two shirts—one says "You're Doing Great!" and the other says "Good for You!" Because what if instead of seeing that guy's shirt, my girls saw a shirt that maybe did a little bit of good or put a smile on someone else's face?

It's why I insist on fabric that feels great on your skin: If you're wearing something that feels like a hive of bees, you're not going to be putting your best foot forward, you're not going to be thinking good thoughts. But what if, instead, your clothes actually made you feel good? Maybe that would make you just a little bit nicer to somebody that day, which might put them in a better mood, and then in turn they would be nicer to the next person, and so on and so on. It can send everybody off on a more positive trajectory. I like that better than having to cover my kids' eyes.

4 SUPPORT PEOPLE'S STYLE CHOICES

My daughters have their own sense of style, which is a thousand times better than having mine. Georgie is very specific in what she wears. Vivie can be more flexible, but she's said to me on several occasions, "That's my style, Mama." And I can tell when she wears something and feels good in it. For me it's like: As long as you're not going to the park in a long skirt that you're going to trip and fall on, you go for it. If there's no danger issue, wear whatever you want. I can tell you like it, I can tell you feel good about yourself in it, so knock yourself out. And if you want to wear a shirt on your head wrapped like a turban and you feel great about that, then I'll buy you more shirts to wrap around your head like a turban. I just think you're going to have so many people saying, "You shouldn't, you can't, that's not okay," that there's no way I'm going to be one of those people. I'm gonna help fight that as much as I can. So turbans for everyone!

5 BREAK DOWN BARRIERS

I created a fashion line that is for all sizes. My whole goal is to stop categorizing women. I can't control who puts what where in the store—that's out of my abilities—but it's all for sale, all together, on my website. At least 60 percent of women in the U.S. are a size 14. I find it incredibly bizarre that so many companies undervalue the majority of their customers. It's like opening an office-supply store and saying, "Oh, you can't come in if you actually use pens, are thinking about using a pen or have ever held a pen." The point is, I'm making clothes I hope women like, all women.

I had a five-year plan for my line, and it included this: I wanted all of my clothes, in all sizes, to be down on the regular floor of stores. I know what it's like not being able to go shopping with my friends, because "women like me" have been hidden away on a different floor next to the tire section. But now there are already two very big stores—I won't name them until it's official—that have agreed to keep all the sizes of my line together, on the main floor. For that to happen, in just our first year, means everything to me. So here's to shopping with our friends and learning to love and appreciate all the amazing ladies in our lives. And to wearing more turbans!

On-set with Kristen Bell filming Michelle Darnell, due next spring.

The rebooted, all-female Ghostbusters crew.

WHAT'S NEXT FOR MELISSA

The newly minted fashion mogul is already planning big things: "Oh, I will be doing shoes at some point, believe me," she says. She'll also be adding holiday looks to her collection in the coming months. Meanwhile, McCarthy hasn't exactly quit her day job: In addition to starring in next summer's hotly anticipated Ghostbusters reboot, she's also wrapping up Michelle Darnell, a comedy she cowrote with the film's director—her husband, Ben Falcone. But wait! There's more! McCarthy will also return to her hit CBS sitcom Mike & Molly later this year.

With her Mike & Molly spouse, Billy Gardell.

REESE WITHERSPOON

AND 9 OTHER STYLISH STARS!

MODERN BELLE

'I've loved clothes since I was a little girl,' says the star, who pegs her penchant for feminine style on her southern upbringing. Says stylist Leslie Fremar: 'She's more flirty during the day with pattern and color. At night she keeps things very well-tailored.'

This asymmetrical Saint Laurent mini, worn while promoting Hot Pursuit in Mexico, "was a little more edgy for me," Witherspoon says.

"With white I feel like there's nowhere to hide," the star says. "It has to be really well-fitted if you're going to do a white dress." Take this custom Giorgio Armani, for example.

"It was actually heavy," Witherspoon says of this metallic fit-and-flare number by David Koma, which she called "a little robot dress."

A low neckline (as on this Stella McCartney) is a rarity for the star. "She is aware of her age and being a mother," says Fremar. "She likes to stay a little more covered up."

Even her LBDs have a teeny bit of sass! The fringed heart motif on the bodice of this Prabal Gurung design provided a whimsical touch.

When it comes to fashion, the actress, 39, knows what she likes (bright hues, clean lines) and what she doesn't (crop tops and poufy princess dresses on her 5'2" frame). "I'd look like a mushroom!" she tells People. It's that cheeky confidence and the parade of knockout dresses she wore this year that put her at the top of our list.

"Simple and perfect" is how the actress described the custom Jason Wu gown she wore to the Met Gala.

This Chanel dress appeared as a tunic over trousers on the runway, but Witherspoon makes the glittery mini look ladylike with sleek pointy pumps.

"The way they beaded it shaped her body," Fremar says of this Calvin Klein Collection dress. Fun fact: It was the first time the actress wore head-to-toe sparkle.

"I always tell [my stylists] that it's hard to dress short girls," Witherspoon says. The sleek silhouette and defined waist of this Lanvin gown are elongating.

HER DRAPER JAMES STREET STYLE

Since launching her clothing line Draper James this spring, Witherspoon's looks have become even more Pinterest-worthy. We love how she mixes the brand's cheery pieces (like the tops seen here) with other preppy staples.

Best Dressed List 2015

JULIANNE MOORE

Think plunging necklines and formfitting designs have an expiration date? At 54, the Oscar winner is evidence that some styles only get better with age

POWER PLAYER

'I think the fashion game has changed considerably in the last 10 years or so,' the actress told People. 'We have access to things we didn't before.' It's something she clearly takes advantage of—and appreciates. 'It's wonderful to wear these beautiful dresses,' she said.

Forget the front row! Moore had a starring role in Chanel's casino-themed couture show as a super-chic gambler—clad in a custom velvet look and diamonds by the brand, of course.

Moore called her custom Givenchy Haute Couture SAG Awards dress "beautiful and extreme." Amethyst Chopard earrings were an unexpectedly perfect pairing.

Matching your shoes to your gown (hers is Givenchy) to your lip to your… hair? Why not? "I always think, 'How is her red hair going to accent this?' " says her stylist Leslie Fremar.

This Armani Privé gown packs a ton of drama thanks to the low-cut neckline and one of the actress's fave embellishments. According to her stylist, "She really loves feathers."

With so many events during awards season, "it's about just trying to stay fresh and new," says Fremar. Moore's foolproof way to keep heads turned? Bold color, like this custom scarlet Tom Ford.

KATE HUDSON

There's Old Hollywood glamour, and then there's the 36-year-old's version of the classic look—sparkly, slinky and slit up to there. New Hollywood, take notes

"This was so simple and comfortable," Lopez notes of the sleek black Michael Kors Collection jumpsuit. "Kate loves stuff like that."

When Hudson tried on this metallic pleated J. Mendel gown, "every inch was as amazing as I thought it was going to be," her stylist reveals.

"This look had a Hollywood pizazz to it," says her stylist of the high-slit black sequin Louis Vuitton skirt, paired with a casual white blouse (also Louis Vuitton) for "balance."

Hudson battled between two "completely different" Michael Kors Collection dresses for the Met Gala. The game-changer? The Lorraine Schwartz necklace she wore as a headpiece. "We put it on with this dress and it was amazing," Lopez says.

The actress tried on more than 30 dresses during her Golden Globes fittings, but this crystal-detailed custom Atelier Versace gown took the crown. "The Versace team really knows how to fit a dress on a woman," says Lopez.

SHOW-STOPPER

Let's just say what you're probably thinking: Hudson's ensembles have been super-sexy this year. And yes, that's intentional. 'I look for dresses that are going to make her body even more amazing,' stylist Sophie Lopez says.

MINDY KALING

Killer heels, custom fits and brilliant colors: The star's signature style comes with a little help from The Mindy Project's costume designer Salvador Perez

TAILORED PERFECTION

What's the top priority when working with the 36-year-old? Making sure the pieces she loves fit her impeccably. 'That can make or break an outfit,' says Perez, who praises the star's 'great sense of style.'

Kaling found this teal sheath on Etsy, which Perez then tweaked. "She shops all the time. If she doesn't know what to do with the pieces, I take her inspiration and make it a reality."

The custom pink mini Perez made for the People Magazine Awards is a favorite of his. "A great color can be a statement," he says. "The dress is memorable in its simplicity, which is rare."

Perez added crystals to the bodice, sleeves and train of her Vanity Fair Oscar Party gown. "I wouldn't put her in a [plain] black dress; too easy!" he says. "It had bling without being a beaded gown."

The secret behind many of Kaling's chic extras? Her TV alter ego Mindy Lahiri's closet. "We probably have 2,000 earrings and 500 shoes," Perez says of the accessories at her disposal.

Kaling's subtly sparkly two-piece Cannes gown, another Perez original, started with a fabric-shopping trip where they fell for the bright colors: "Now she wants to go to the fabric store all the time!"

ELIZABETH BANKS

Hands down the most fearless lady on the red carpet, the actress and Pitch Perfect 2 director, 41, rocks bright ensembles that are anything but one-note

STATEMENT-MAKER

One look at Banks's greatest hits and it's clear: She's got a flair for the unexpected. And sister styling duo Wendi and Nicole Ferreira can support that. 'She's adventurous and confident,' says Nicole. Adds Wendi: 'And she does a back shot better than anyone!'

The first thing her stylists eye when selecting options for the star? "It's always color," says Wendi. An example: this scarlet Elie Saab gown.

Some stars go totally costumey for the Met Gala, but Banks took a no-frills approach in a sleek Michael Kors Collection gown. "It was so simple," Wendi says.

This beaded Balmain illusion dress had a strategically placed sheer panel. "We'll leave the undergarments to your imagination," says Wendi.

"We steer clear of anything that's too overtly sexy," says Nicole. Note the subtle show of leg in this "magnificent" Elie Saab piece.

Marchesa's fringed halter set "suited Elizabeth's playfulness but had a little bit of an attitude," says Nicole.

Best Dressed List 2015

KIERNAN SHIPKA

The Mad Men star is the only teen on our list, but it's kind of impossible not to include her when she turns out looks as glam (and grown-up!) as these

TEENAGE DREAM

The 15-year-old (yes, she's only 15!) has been working with stylists Jill Lincoln and Jordan Johnson since age 10. 'We're very protective,' says Lincoln. 'She'll have plenty of chances to dress provocatively. For now, we focus on fun, youthful styles.'

"We started out with Valentino RED and eventually graduated to big-girl Valentino—the fantasy of every girl, 15 to 100!" says Johnson. "The brand is a strong supporter of her style."

Shipka is a big fan of Delpozo, but this dress had extra appeal for her: "It has monkeys on it, which was a huge sell!" the actress says. "It's unique and interesting."

Her Oscar de la Renta dress got high marks for its fun factor. "There was a flounciness, and the embroidery was gorgeous," Shipka says.

"We've had several home runs with Delpozo for Kiernan," Lincoln says, adding that with a teen, "we have more freedom in the shapes, colors and prints we can work with."

"Working with Kiernan is every stylist's dream," says Johnson. "It's been so fun to watch her grow up and play dress-up over the years," especially in girlie pieces like this Lela Rose.

ROSE BYRNE

It's tough to anticipate what the actress, 36, will wear because her style is so unpredictable. But with stunners like these, we like to keep guessing

SERIOUSLY CHIC

'She's not afraid to try things and have a good time with her look,' says stylist Penny Lovell, adding that Byrne likes to play with interesting textures. 'I think you can see that in the choices she makes.'

Byrne wore this cutout Osman dress to the N.Y.C. premiere of Spy. "It's almost like a piece of art. It was fun for that movie," says Lovell.

There's a lot happening on this Preen mini, but the star has the moxie to rock it. Lovell loves the lace-up detailing down the sides: "It's a great juxtaposition to the florals on the front."

"The ankle length was really fresh," Lovell says of the plunging Delpozo column dress Byrne wore to the Tony Awards. "It's very cool right now to be able to see some shoe."

The actress doesn't mind showing a little skin. Proof: this sheer Burberry Prorsum number. "We deliberately didn't line that dress because you would lose all the effects of the beautiful lace," Lovell explains.

Our reaction to Byrne's custom leather Calvin Klein Collection gown at the Met Gala was exactly the same as her glam squad's. "When she first put it on, everyone was like, 'Oh my God!' " says her stylist.

ZOE SALDANA

New motherhood certainly hasn't slowed down this fashion-forward 37-year-old. Just look at these sartorial selections!

To play up Saldana's figure, her stylist used a no-fail fashion rule: Cinch the waist. "The design [a sleek lace-up Altuzarra suit] was very flattering," says Flannery.

"Not many people could wear this," says Flannery of Dolce & Gabbana's jacquard leather-appliqué dress. "It's covered, but it's still supersexy."

For cocktail attire like this Cushnie et Ochs, Flannery prefers minimal jewelry ("It's a little more fresh") with one exception: "Zoë loves her rings."

Saldana's Roland Mouret sheath was a knockout on its own, but the yellow Christian Louboutin heels "really gave the look a pop," Flannery says.

The actress worked with pal Prabal Gurung on her custom Vanity Fair Oscar Party gown. "A strapless dress is great post-pregnancy, because it's not restricting," says her stylist.

MAMMA MIA!

Becoming a mom (Saldana welcomed twin boys in November 2014) 'is such a beautiful time,' says stylist Petra Flannery, noting it opened up exciting outfit opportunities for the star this year. 'We celebrated and accentuated the curves she never really had before.'

SIENNA MILLER

Only this actress, 33, can make high fashion look so effortless. She's mastered the perfect blend of bohemian chic and timeless elegance

SIMPLY STUNNING

She used to be the patron saint of the hippie-glam aesthetic—with a thing for flowy layers and fringe—but her style has evolved, especially in the past year. 'As you grow up, things change,' she has said, noting she now prefers 'more simple' and sophisticated looks.

On its own, this embellished pale pink Burberry gown seems totally girlie. But styled with a dark mani and a tousled do, her pastel look feels way more posh than prim.

Tailored and pared down with a hint of shimmer, this Calvin Klein Collection midi fits Miller's description of designer Francisco Costa's work: "understated but incredibly chic."

The Ralph Lauren Collection evening gown she wore to the amfAR Gala at Cannes took artisans nearly 700 hours to make. All those glistening sequins you see? They're custom dyed.

We generally wouldn't classify "leather and lace" as ethereal, but when Miller stepped out in this Gucci creation (which is made of, you guessed it, leather and lace), we reconsidered.

From a distance, this Balenciaga looks like classic couture, but up close there are amazing gritty details, like grommets on the bodice and a collar made of wire rings looped together.

EMILY BLUNT

The colorful midis and glittering gowns the actress, 32, wore this year turned our style crush into a full-on love affair

HEAD-TURNER

'The great thing about Emily is she can make something very simple look drop-dead gorgeous,' says Blunt's stylist Jessica Paster. 'She's never done a wrong turn.'

"This is actually a two-piece. The shirt gets buttoned into the cummerbund," Paster explains of Blunt's Elisabetta Franchi look, styled with metallic Kurt Geiger pumps.

Paster chose this Stella McCartney gown (worn to the Sicario premiere at Cannes) to complement those 43-carat Anna Hu Haute Joaillerie emerald earrings. "The dress fit her like a glove."

"She picked out those shoes right away," Paster notes of Blunt's chartreuse Jimmy Choo sandals, paired with a colorful Peter Pilotto midi. "She has fun with clothes."

According to Paster, Blunt wanted to "do something a little edgier than usual" at Switzerland's IWC Gala, so she switched up the silhouette in a draped-sleeve Alexander McQueen gown.

"David Koma made this for her," says her stylist of the sparkling asymmetrical design, selected for the London premiere of Into the Woods. "It was originally designed to be shorter."

ASHLEY MADEKWE

Get ready for some major outfit inspiration! The British actress and fashion blogger models People's new design collaboration with Gilt

ALL ABOUT ASHLEY

When Madekwe, 33, launched her personal style blog Ring My Bell in 2009, "it was just a fun hobby … a creative outlet." But when she began getting cast in big-time shows (like the hit drama Revenge and more recently Salem), she refused to cut back on her popular outfit of the day (#OOTD in Instagram-speak) posts. "It felt disingenuous to stop doing my blog just because people started recognizing me on TV," she says. "My blog and my acting career kind of grew with each other." Along with the number of tricks she learned for putting together picture-perfect ensembles: "I keep a rack of new things I haven't worn yet by my closet. They inspire me." Fellow street-style stars help too. "In London you always see great off-duty model style," she says. "It's a go-to look: great jeans, a great T-shirt, a great biker jacket. That's my off-duty look as well." To nail the vibe, she ditches what she calls "sugar-rush shopping" (buying supertrendy pieces that'll barely last a season) and focuses on building her basics. "I've learned that less is more.… I just keep the things I know I'm going to wear." →

MOTO MANIA
"I have three leather jackets, all different cuts," Madekwe says. "I drape [slings them over her shoulders]. It's a very fashion-editor thing to do." Leather moto jacket, $320; slouchy tee, $29; star ear cuff, $29; sunglasses, $49

ONE-PIECE WONDER
Think jumpsuits only work in the evening with strappy heels? Try slip-ons and rolled cuffs for a brunch-ready vibe. Jumpsuit, $129; slide sneakers, $89; leather tassel bag, $249

WE LOVE HER INSTAGRAM BECAUSE...

1 Her hubby is darling. Actor and photog Iddo Goldberg doesn't just play the role of husband: "He takes photos for my blog," she says. They also star in Salem together!

2 She has the cutest cat. Her kitty Oscar is certainly not camera-shy. He even has his own passport so he can make cozy cameos with Madekwe everywhere she goes.

3 Her shoe collection is bananas. Her blog bio says she has more "shoes than sense," but she's always putting old pairs up for sale. You can buy killer heels (like these) from the app Depop.

"People get an opportunity to see my personality by what I wear," says Wade (pictured here with Union at the 2015 CAA Pre-Golden Globes Party Jan. 9).

Best Dressed Couples

DESIGNED FOR EACH OTHER

These duos prove the perfect accessory is a partner tailor-made for you

GABRIELLE UNION & DWYANE WADE

At Yahoo Style's Met Gala afterparty May 4.

Wade, 33, and Union, 42, may be the current king and queen of the red carpet, but they weren't always style soulmates. We can hardly believe what the Miami Heat guard wore on his first date with the Being Mary Jane star: "Bedazzled jeans," he admits. They've come a long way since that day in 2009, though, now turning heads for all the right reasons. "We really enjoy fashion," Union says. "We have fun with it!" And it shows. Whether they're decked out or dressed down, it's obvious they're a perfect fit together.

You have the best coordinating red carpet style. Do you guys put a lot of thought into getting ready?

WADE: We don't plan it out. Our stylists will talk to each other, but normally I get dressed in a different room, then I'll come in and she will see what I am wearing [for the first time]. Like the Met Gala [in May]—you didn't know what I was wearing.

UNION: I had no idea. Our stylists talked but just to make sure we weren't going to clash.

Do you get each other's approval before heading out?

UNION: Not approval in the sense of "Do you like it? If you don't, I'm not going to wear it," but more like, "Are there bogies in this outfit? Is it see-through? Does it fit right?" Our relationship doesn't really function that way where we have veto power.

How would you describe your go-to style when you're off the clock?

UNION: In Miami it's lightweight and sexy, with a lot of color. In L.A. it's edgy Americana. L.A. is just so much more laid-back. I feel like if I wore some of the outfits I wear in Miami in L.A., I would look like an Easter egg.

WADE: I try to be original, unpredictable. I'm always switching it up. I never want someone to feel like they know how I'm going to dress.

But you're known for your hat game.

WADE: I love wearing hats. I think they add flavor to an outfit.

UNION: They add a bit of mystery and at times a different kind of sex appeal. If his head were a little bigger, I would steal more of his hats. But his head is small, and my weave is large.

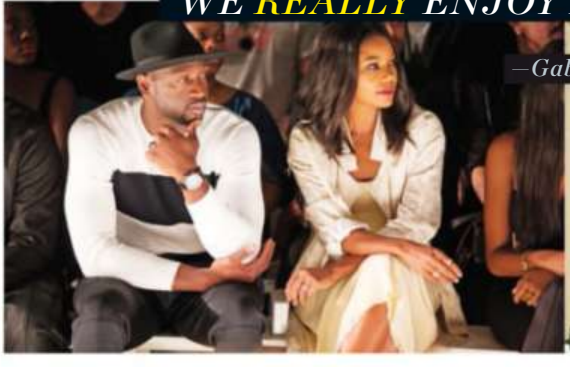
WADE: One day she bought this blue hat, and I fell in love with how it looked on her. She's been wearing it ever since.

That's so sweet! Do you ever pick out clothes for each other?

WADE: I always pick out her clothes! She never really picks out mine. She calls me into her closet and asks, "Babe, how does this look? Should I wear this? What about this purse?" True?

UNION: This is very true. I generally need more help than he does. He has his outfits picked out and coordinated [down to] the shoes and the socks, because that's the way he rolls.

'WE REALLY ENJOY FASHION. WE HAVE FUN WITH IT!'
—Gabrielle Union



HAT TRICK "I love hats when I don't want to do my hair," says Union.

'I WAIT ON HER TO GET DRESSED, THEN I GET DRESSED!'

—Dwyane Wade

Wade stands by as Union finishes prepping for the 2015 Met Gala.

His closet is freakishly organized. If I were helping him, he would be naked! I'd be like, "You look amazing—you should leave just like that!"

Do you go shopping together often?

UNION: We usually start out shopping for me, but I'm not always the one who ends up with bags.

WADE: I don't love going from store to store. I'm not really a shopper. If she makes me go, then I will, but I'd rather have my stylist pull a million looks and decide from there. [Laughs]

What's one piece you wish you could throw away from the other's closet?

UNION: I don't even know if he still has them, because he edits [his wardrobe], but he has some pink manpris [yes, that would be capri pants for men] that I believe me and the rest of the world, certainly America, would like to see go.

WADE: It would be sandals. I hate sandals. She has a lot of sandals.

Really?! What's your issue with sandals?

WADE: When women wear sandals too long, it leaves those toe prints on the [insole]. I don't like those toe prints! And then she's got those gladiator sandals. I am not a fan of those.

UNION: He's not a fan of the gladiators. And of course they were huge, and I bought, like, six pairs. If I want him to look at me adoringly, I don't generally wear them, but when I'm away from home, I have them on for sure.

Now we know why you collaborated on a sock line, Dwyane!

UNION: That could be the new tagline [for Stance socks]: "No toe prints."

Too funny! So who do you think takes longer to get ready?

UNION: Hmm, to actually physically get dressed? He does.

WADE: That is not true at all. I wait on her to get dressed, then I get dressed!

UNION: If his hair had just been cut and my hair and makeup were done, and all we had to do was put on clothes, I'd be done way sooner than him. He could get lost in his closet. His closet is way more impressive than mine.

Whose closet is bigger?

WADE: It's even. We built a house in Miami, and we did our closets the exact same size.

UNION: Whatever. He also built a shoe vault. It could have been our guest room, but it's a shoe vault. And then he's also taken over every closet in every other guest room, so the closet in our actual bedroom is technically the same. But that's not including the other five closet takeovers and the shoe vault.

WADE: Oh yeah, those.

Who has better jewelry?

UNION: He's got a lot more jewelry. He's like Mr. T in this relationship.

WADE: I have more watches because of Hubolt [he is a spokesperson for the brand]. I'm not really a jewelry guy. I have about three chains. Well, maybe five. But she has way more accessories.

UNION: But they're from sales on Shopbop. He's got more things insured than I do.

What would you say is the most important piece in your wardrobe?

WADE: Uh, everything! I can't do without anything that's in my closet. Ev-er-y-thing.

UNION: I'm going to go with my wedding ring.

WADE: Oh!

UNION: Got ya!

THE NEXT GENERATION

They might be young, but these red carpet risk-takers have fashion smarts well beyond their years

Maisie Williams, 18
Never in a million years could we imagine Arya Stark in a dress and heels, let alone a look as glam as this Luis Antonio number. Maybe that's why the Game of Thrones star likes to "shock" fans with unexpectedly feminine ensembles in real life.

Hailee Steinfeld, 18
Few celebs have the chops to pull off this fuzzy Fendi dress. When you're a muse for Karl Lagerfeld, though, stepping out in high fashion is as normal as wearing jeans.

Peyton List, 17
The Disney darling's fresh take on sophisticated silhouettes put her on our radar. Case in point: this ladylike moment, starring a Kalmanovich top and Giulietta skirt.

Zendaya Coleman, 19
The star says her personal style is "all over the place." And we think that's a good thing, since it results in crazy-cool looks like this custom Fausto Puglisi creation.

Bella Thorne, 17
The Big Sky actress has worn so many adventurous outfits, she says it's impossible to narrow them down to a fave. But we're pretty partial to this bold Peter Pilotto mini.

BUDDY VALASTRO

Chocolate Chip & Walnut Cookies

TAKE ONE BITE AND YOU'LL KNOW WHY THIS IS THE CAKE BOSS STAR'S GO-TO RECIPE

- 1 cup butter, softened
- 1 cup packed light brown sugar
- ⅔ cup sugar
- 2 large eggs
- 2 tsp. vanilla extract
- 1½ tsp. baking soda
- 2¾ cups all-purpose flour
- 1 (12-oz.) package chocolate chips or 8 oz. coarsely chopped chocolate
- 1 cup chopped walnuts

1. Preheat oven to 350°.
2. Beat butter and sugars with electric mixer on medium-high speed for 2 minutes, until mixture is very fluffy and turns several shades lighter in color.
3. Beat in eggs, vanilla and baking soda for 1 minute on low speed, scraping sides of the bowl as needed.
4. Gradually mix in flour just until blended. Stir in chocolate and walnuts.
5. Drop heaping balls of dough (about 2 tbsp. each) onto a baking sheet 2 inches apart. Bake until golden around the edges, 11 to 13 minutes.
6. Cool cookies 1 minute in the pan, then, using a spatula, transfer to a wire rack to cool completely.

Makes: 3½ dozen cookies
Prep time: 15 minutes
Cook time: 15 minutes

Watch Buddy Valastro on Cake Boss on Tuesdays at 9/8c on TLC.

Expert Tip!
'If you like cinnamon, add a dash of it to the dry ingredients before mixing,' says Valastro. 'It'll give the cookies an extra kick of flavor.'

- 4 tomatoes, cored and halved
- 4 tbsp. extra-virgin olive oil, divided
- 1 clove garlic, smashed and finely minced
- 1 tbsp. chopped fresh thyme
- 1½ tsp. kosher salt, divided
- ¾ tsp. freshly ground black pepper, divided
- 8 large eggs
- ½ cup whole milk
- ½ cup diced summer squash
- ¼ cup chopped fresh parsley
- 2 cups spinach
- 4 oz. grated parmigiano-reggiano cheese
- ¼ cup thinly sliced scallions

1. Preheat the broiler on low. Season the tomatoes with 2 tbsp. oil, garlic, thyme, ½ tsp. salt and ¼ tsp. pepper. Place tomatoes skin side up in a baking dish on the middle rack. Broil about 15 minutes, or until the skins are browned.

2. Remove and discard the skins, and continue to broil tomatoes, often spooning the juices on top, about 5 minutes. Remove from oven and let cool.

3. To make the quiche, preheat oven to 375°. In a large bowl, whisk eggs till smooth. Slowly stir in milk until incorporated.

4. Heat 1 tbsp. oil in a medium skillet over medium-high heat. Add the squash and cook 5 minutes or until translucent. Mix in parsley and spinach. Combine the eggs and the squash mixture in a heated, lightly greased 9-inch round baking dish. Season with 1 tsp. salt and ½ tsp. pepper. Bake for 20 to 25 minutes or until the eggs are set.

5. Top with baked tomatoes and sprinkle with cheese. Broil on high until cheese and tomatoes are bubbly. Let stand for 10 minutes before slicing. Garnish with scallions and remaining olive oil.

"I thought it was going to be a boy, and we were surprised. It's the greatest gift," says Scott (with Ada, left, and Iyla).

Introducing
IYLA VUE HART
BORN: Aug. 3, 2015

ASHLEY SCOTT

Meet My 'Precious' Daughter

Ashley Scott gives her husband, Steve Hart, all the credit for coming up with the name Iyla Vue (pronounced "I love you"). "We loved Iyla, and one day he goes, 'What about Vue?' And I said, 'It's either the greatest name ever or the absolute worst,'" says the UnREAL actress, 38. "It took us about four days after she was born to name her, and then I thought, 'I just love it.' She's so delicate and sweet and tender that Iyla Vue fit her perfectly." Already full of giggles and smiles, Iyla has a happy nature that may have something to do with the way she was born. "When I delivered her, my husband told me a joke, and it made me laugh," says Scott. "We literally laughed her into the world." As a mom for the second time, Scott says she is "more appreciative" of having a newborn. "I was so in love with my daughter [Ada, 5½], but I feel like I'm savoring the moments more. You know how precious time is, and so being up with her all night is a joy, really." —GABRIELLE OLYA

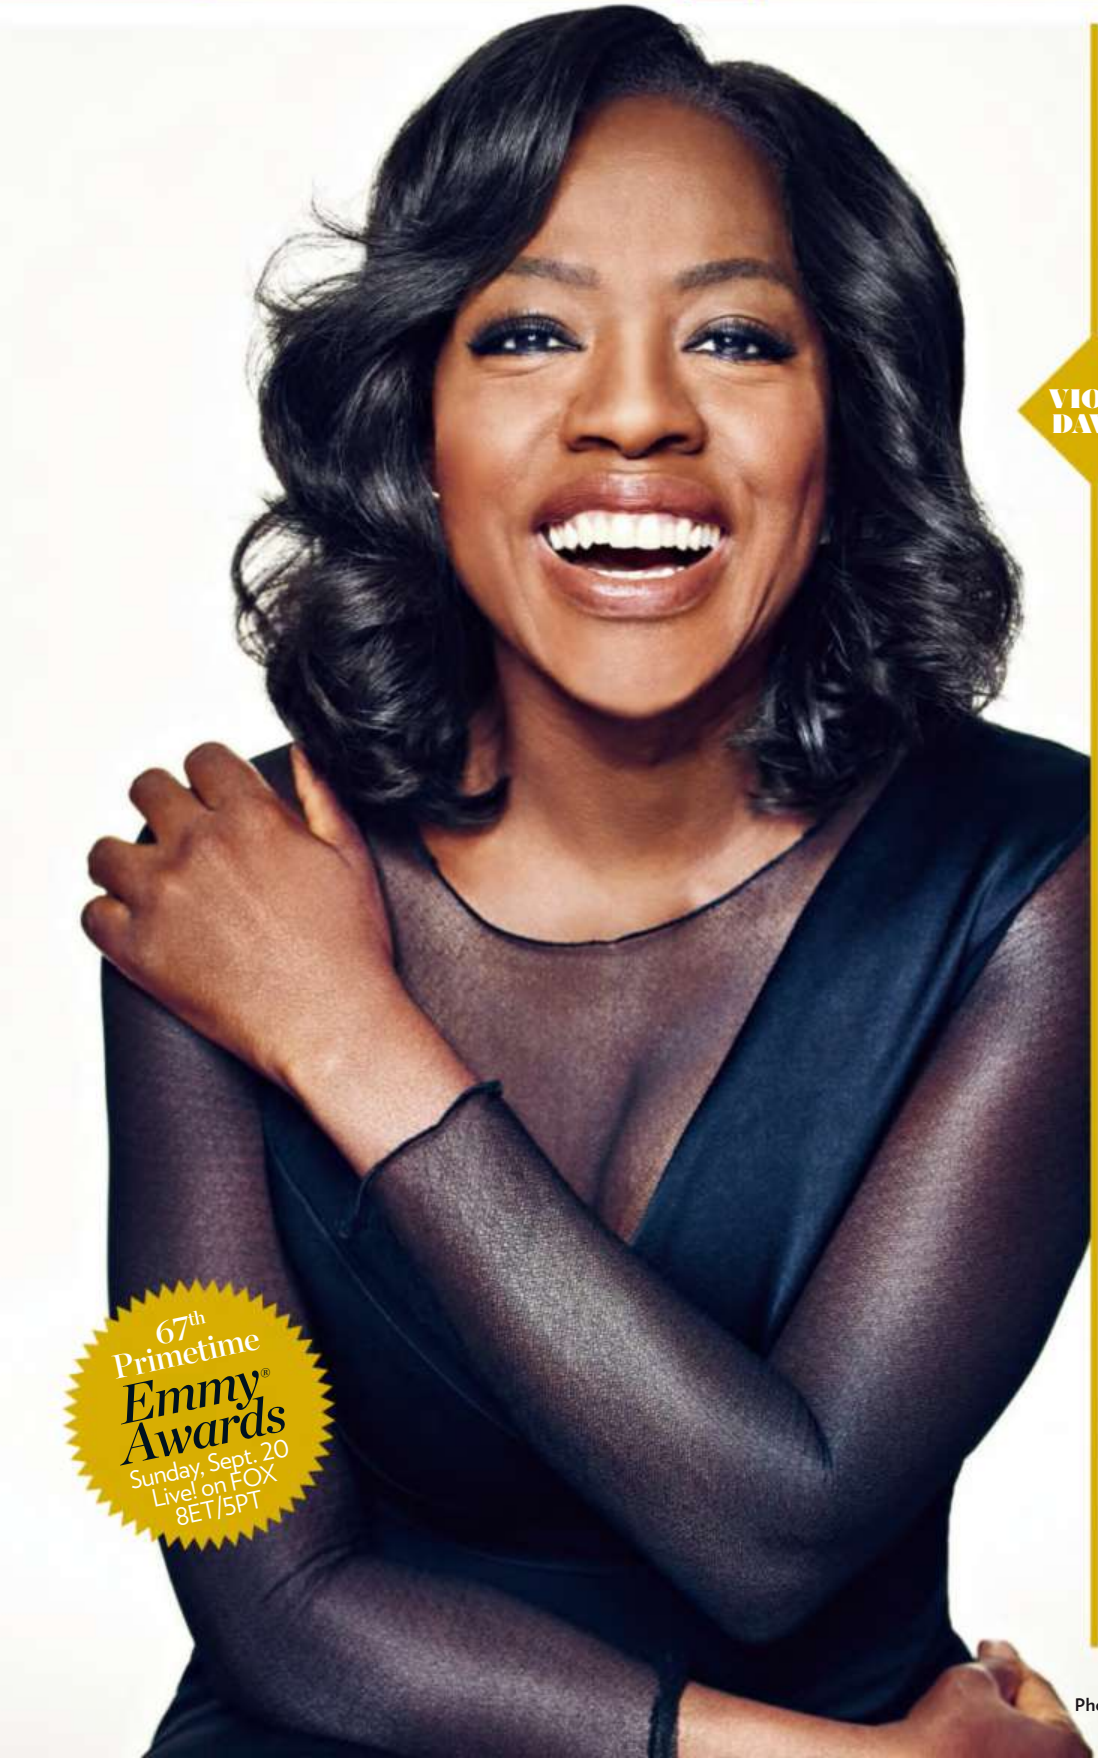
ROLL OUT THAT RED CARPET! ALL YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT TV'S BIGGEST NIGHT—AND WHO WE THINK WILL WIN

By Patrick Gomez and Janine Rayford Rubenstein



VIOLA DAVIS

How to Get an Emmy Nom

Most actresses would have been glued to their phones—but not Viola Davis. The day Emmy nominations were announced, "I was in my Jacuzzi and I got a call from a friend. We had a whole conversation and then, as he was ready to hang up, he said, 'Oh. By the way, congratulations on your nomination,'" the star of ABC's How to Get Away with Murder (which returns Sept. 24) says of learning she was in the running for Outstanding Lead Actress in a Drama Series. It may be her first chance at an Emmy, but the two-time Oscar nominee, 50, didn't let it go to her head. "It's not that it doesn't excite me, but win or lose, I'm going back to work the next day." Her celebration of the news was similarly low-key: "I made an egg salad sandwich on low-carb toast, had some Prosecco and got back in the Jacuzzi!"

Emmy's New Man

THE BROOKLYN NINE-NINE STAR, 37, IS EAGER TO LIGHTEN UP THE SHOW

What should the audience expect from you as a host? Award shows can feel really tense with a lot of nervous [nominees]. As the show goes on, there are more and more people in the audience who didn't win. So my goal is to keep it light, silly and fun.

A lot of your former SNL costars have hosted award shows. Have any of them given you pointers? I've gotten a lot of advice from Amy Poehler, but it's mostly been about the afterparty. She was on me to figure out my venue. And she said I have to make sure there is dancing. Dancing was the most important.

How do you plan on celebrating after? The next day is a production day for Brooklyn Nine-Nine, but it's also my two-year wedding anniversary [with wife Joanna Newsom, 33]. So fingers-crossed that they find a way to get me out of shooting that day. I'm assuming I'll celebrate by giving my wife a gift and then falling asleep facedown on my bed.

Come on, it's Jon Hamm's last chance to win for Mad Men! (It's his eighth try.) But Don Draper isn't the first beloved character to get the cold shoulder

COURTENEY COX
No gold for Monica. She was the only Friend never nominated.

STEVE CARELL
Poor Michael. The Office star left empty-handed six times.

KIM CATTRALL
As Sex and the City's Samantha, Cattrall scored five nods but no wins.

BEFORE THEY WERE NOMINEES

#Throwback These former child stars went on to hit it big on the small screen

Mayim Bialik
Before Big Bang, a 12-year-old Bialik played a young Bette Midler in 1988's Beaches.

Anna Chlumsky
Back in 1991 the Veep star (then 10) starred in the hit movie My Girl.

Gaby Hoffmann
Twice nominated (for Girls and Transparent) Hoffman made a splash in 1995's Now and Then at age 13.

SITCOMS OF MY LIFE

The star of ABC's black-ish—and first-time nominee—salutes the shows that inspired him

ALL IN THE FAMILY

"I'm a '70s baby, and when dad was asleep and mom was at bingo, I'd watch Archie Bunker. He had bigoted views, but I appreciated his honesty," says Anderson, 45.

GOOD TIMES

"My family identified with this one. I was like J.J. because I was the artist. And I had a crush on Penny (Janet Jackson).

THE JEFFERSONS

"'Movin' On Up' was our theme song! Just like in black-ish, they were working hard, living the American Dream."

My Red Carpet Survival Guide

BIG NIGHT MUST-HAVES FROM ORANGE IS THE NEW BLACK'S BREAKOUT STYLE STAR

The one thing she always has in her purse

Perfume! A fragrance is a nice entrée into a room without ever having to say a word.

Her-go to date for the evening

My sister Chi-Chi. She hasn't been to the Emmys yet, so it's going to be exciting. She's my best friend in the whole world!

The star whose red carpet style she admires

I kind of live for Kerry Washington and everything she's giving. She's always very chic and current, fresh and classic. It's like Audrey Hepburn meets the Queen of Sheba.

Her awards show philosophy

Just have fun! This is a good time and it's to be enjoyed. Don't sweat the small stuff. Just have your moment.

Good Friends

FROM COSTARS TO CONOMINEES! THE REAL-LIFE PALS TALK ABOUT SECOND-ACT STARDOM

THE COMEBACK, HBO

EPISODES, SHOWTIME

Matt, you just got your fourth nomination playing a fictionalized version of yourself on Episodes, and Lisa, this is your second time for The Comeback. Did you call each other when you heard you were both nominated?

LISA: I found out that morning when Matty texted me "Yay!" I texted back "Are we going to the Emmys?...Oh my God!" But at first I just thought he was nominated. I knew he was.

MATT: I thought you knew I meant you and I. How did you know I was?

LISA: You're nominated almost every year!

The characters you play now have a lot in common, namely, narcissism.

MATT: They're both making a comeback. My character Matt is like therapy. What not to do in life. Don't behave like that guy.

LISA: But you're a good guy, that's why it's funny. I love playing Valerie. I find her state of denial really comforting.

What's your funniest Friends memory?

MATT: It feels like so long ago. Sometimes we couldn't get through a scene without laughing. Remember when you had to say . . .

LISA: "At Monica's you can eat cookies over the sink!" Yes, I couldn't say it! It was annoying.

MATT: It was so funny. That uncontrollable laugh you have kills me. Lisa's very ticklish.

What was Matt like on-set?

LISA: Like a brother. Of the three guys, he'd come sit with us and have girl talk.

When was the last reunion?

MATT: All six of us had dinner recently for Courteney Cox's birthday. It felt like no time had passed, but it'd been almost 12 years.

LISA: Like Matt says, if you're trapped in a building with other people for 10 years, when they finally let you out, you scatter!

We'll have what Cookie's having!

The Emmy Awards

TV'S MOST PRESTIGIOUS TROPHIES WILL BE BESTOWED SEPT. 20, 8 P.M. ET/5 P.M. PT ON FOX. PEOPLE'S TOM GLIATTO PICKS HIS FAVORITES.

Jon Hamm

BEST ACTOR, DRAMA

This should be the year that Hamm finally wins—after seven losses—for his superb work as Don Draper, the 1960s ad man with the soul of a huckster, the moves of a Don Juan and the eyes of a man too smart and too sad to buy the American Dream: He can only sell it, poor guy.

VIOLA DAVIS

BEST ACTRESS, DRAMA

As criminal defense lawyer and professor Annalise Keating on ABC's How to Get Away with Murder, Davis rages, howls, weeps and—depending on the scene—loves wildly or destroys completely. She's a little like Glenn Close on Damages, but possibly more like a rogue missile. Duck, why don't you?

JEFFREY TAMBOR

BEST ACTOR, COMEDY

Known for Arrested Development and a voice that rolls in like a bowling ball, he landed the role of a lifetime on Amazon's series as a man transitioning into a woman. He gives the performance of a lifetime too.

PARKS AND RECREATION

BEST COMEDY

Can the Emmys deny Amy Poehler's now-concluded NBC show its last chance to win a single trophy? Such an adorable, nice sitcom. We can only quote the series' unofficial mascot, Li'l Sebastian: Neigh!

GAME OF THRONES

BEST DRAMA

If Emmys were Oscars, the HBO fantasy series would have already won top prize. It's got epic sweep, impressive design, stunning reversals of fortune, a distinguished cast—everything, really, but an ending.

WOLF HALL

BEST LIMITED SERIES

The PBS Masterpiece drama about Thomas Cromwell, Henry VIII's go-to guy for intractable problems of state, was binge-worthy history. And nominee Mark Rylance was great: a spider with an endless spool of web.

LILY TOMLIN

BEST ACTRESS, COMEDY

Tomlin, a likely Oscar contender for Grandma, is having a richly deserved moment. On Netflix's Grace and Frankie, she plays an aging earth mother with natural (and sharp) humor. She probably couldn't "mug" if her life depended on it.

THE COMEDIAN, 41, HOSTS
LATE NIGHT WITH SETH MEYERS

Last thing I cooked
Probably some kind of chicken for my wife [attorney Alexi Ashe]. My wife thinks I cook too much chicken. My wife thinks I'm obsessed with chicken. My wife thinks I have a problem.

Last good deed
I have no memory of the last good deed that I did. Probably because there's so many, they just all blend together.

Last splurge
My wife and I were at a charity auction, and I had a little too much Scotch and I bid first on something, and it turned out to be the winning bid. I can't tell you what it is, but I'm the proud new owner of something I didn't need that I paid too much for.

Last time I had a sunburn
I am no fan of the sun. I cover myself in suntan lotion, and I don't like going outside without it. I'm, like, on probably a 12-year streak of not getting sunburned. I fully believe the sun is trying to kill us and wipe us from this earth, and it's our job to defend ourselves at all times.

Last time I was starstruck
Michael Douglas. I had never met him before, and he was the best. I was so completely charmed by him. I want to look the way he looks at that age—he's a fox!
